OUR LONDON AIR-MAIL LETTER

Youthful Governor of Bombay: The Prince and the Prefects: Tennis Star and the M.P.'s: London University: Two Great Musicians Meet: Marie Tempest as "Fire-Woman"

(Special Air-Mail Service)

A YOUNG GOVERNOR

London, June 8.
Lord Brabourne is one of the youngest men who have gone to a Governorship in India for long past. He is 38, but none who know him will doubt his capacity for the difficult task of following Sir Frederick Sykes in the Governorship of Bombay.

His personal courage is of the highest order. When in his early flying days one crash after another filled his friends with the utmost apprehension, his nerve was never shaken.

During his brief period as P.P.S. to Sir Samuel Hoare he seized every opportunity to obtain a deep insight into Indian affairs.

A Charming Couple.

His attractive personality, his will to push forward with affairs, and his capacity for friendship will serve him even better than a wider knowledge of India in winning his way in Bombay.

Moreover, he will be accompanied by a wife of real charm, possessed of all the talents that go to make the perfect hostess.

As Lady Doreen Browne—she is the third daughter of Lord Sligo—she was one of the most popular girls of the last pre-war season.

THE PRINCE AT STOWE

The Prince of Wales' visit to Stowe, like that of the Queen in 1927 and of Prince George two years later, was peculiarly fortunate in the matter of weather. The Prince himself seemed to have caught a great deal of the recent sunshine, for he looked very sun-burnt.

Perhaps the happiest part of the whole unofficial visit was when the Prince had tea alone with the prefect. One of them told a friend that the conversation was punctuated by constant laughter, of which the Prince was the instigator.

One of the many afternoon entertainments was the fencing match between Stowe and the Whigs, the old Stowe's fencing club. Under the tuition of Mr. M. O. MacLaughlin, Stowe has attained a position of pre-eminence in that art.

The captain of the Whigs was Mr. J. F. J. F. J. M. F. de Amadio, who at Birmingham had just won one of the biggest international prizes in amateur fencing, the de Escofet Cup.

ON THE TERRACE

While a few stalwarts were arguing the abstruse clauses of the Finance Bill in the House of Commons most members were on the Terrace paying tribute to Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, who had been invited to tea by Captain Victor Cazale.

M.P.s. crowded round to talk to her, and she greeted them all with that charm which is as famous as the poker face she assumes on the tennis court.

Captain Cazale is himself in the Wimbledon class as a tennis player, and is even more devastating in a squash court.

PRINCE TO OPEN NORWICH AERODROME

The Prince of Wales will open the Norwich Municipal Aerodrome on Wednesday, June 21. He will arrive by air at 11.30 a.m. and after opening the aerodrome will inspect the new club premises erected by the Corporation, and also aircraft on the ground. The Prince will leave the aerodrome at noon, for the Royal Norfolk Agricultural Show at King's Lynn.

LONDON UNIVERSITY'S NEW BUILDINGS

Prince Alice, Countess of Athlone, and Major-General the Earl of Athlone, K.G., Chancellor of the University of London, will be present at a reception to be given by the Chairman of the London County Council and Mrs. Ernest M. Dence at the County Hall on Monday evening June 23, following the laying by the King on the afternoon of that day of the foundation-stone of the University of London's new buildings in Bloomsbury.

MARIE TEMPEST FIGHTS FIRE

Fire broke out at the home in Avenue Road, St. John's Wood, N.W., of Miss Marie Tempest, the actress, early on June 3.

Miss Tempest and her husband, Mr. Graham Brown, ran down to the drawing-room, which is under their bedroom, after being awakened by a maid. The maid saw working in the room when she saw the curtains ablaze.

Two men at work in the house fought the fire with buckets of water, which were handed to them by Miss Tempest and Mr. Graham Brown until the fire brigade arrived. A thousand of Mr. Graham Brown's books were destroyed.

TWO MASTERS OF MUSIC MEET

Sir Edward Elgar, Master of the King's Music, celebrated his 78th birthday by flying from Paris to Croydon.

This was only his second air trip, his first being taken a week before, when he flew to France to collaborate with Yehudi Menuhin, the boy violinist in a performance of the composer's violin concerto at a gala concert in Paris. Sir Edward is enthusiastic about flying. He said:—"It was splendid. Flying for me every time."

The composer has always been a keen follower of racing, and when asked if he backed the Derby winner, his eyes twinkled as he replied:—"I don't make mistakes on horses. As music, perhaps, but I can pick out a winner."

During his French visit Sir Edward made a long journey by car to see Delius, the blind composer, who lives at Fontainebleau. He took to the stricken musician a gift of gramophone records.

Youth Escaped.—The meeting of these two great musicians was described by Mr. F. W. Gaisberg, impresario to the H.M.V. Gramophone Company, who accompanied Sir Edward. He said:—"In the two hours that they were together they seemed completely to recapture their lost youth. They talked of happy days together at Leipzig, and of music they had created and played to each other."

"They were really like a pair of boys. Sir Edward was immensely enthusiastic over his first airplane flight, and he evolved with Delius a grandiose scheme so that they could fly round Europe together, giving the greatest concerts that the world has ever known."

"Delius, stricken as he is, retains all his brightness, and he told Sir Edward that a new choral work upon which he has been engaged has almost been completed."

Elgar, too, told him something of the music he was planning for the future.

"Delius spoke with affection of lovely little villa in which he lives, (Continued on next column)

GLEN HARGRAVE GAOLED

TO SERVE SENTENCE IN WASHINGTON

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY)

SHANGHAI, June 20.
GLEN HARGRAVE, the American motor salesman who has been held by the United States authorities in Shanghai on a charge of the murder of Leslie Malcolm Bell, an Englishman, and the charge against whom had been reduced to one of "involuntary manslaughter" pleaded guilty, and was sentenced in the United States Court for China this morning to two years imprisonment.

Hargrave who was defended by four lawyers, was alleged to have hit Bell after being called a vile name but Judge Purdy said he did not believe this.

Plea for Freedom.
Speaking in a quivering voice, the accused pleaded for freedom so that he might help to support Bell's family.

Counsel for defence asked for a suspended sentence but Judge Purdy, in drawing attention to the fact that Hargrave had assaulted another man previously, passed sentence for Hargrave to serve his time in the Monell Island Penitentiary in Washington.

CREeping THINGS IN THE SOUTH SEAS

Backwaters of the Savage South Seas. By Evelyn Cheesman, F.E.S., F.Z.S. Jarrolds. 10s. net.

CREeping THINGS IN THE SOUTH SEAS

Miss Evelyn Cheesman is the distinguished entomologist whom one remembers as Curator of the Insects at the Zoo and on terms of intimate friendship with fantastic or fearful creatures. To love and be loved by a Spider or Scorpion—what a strangely Franciscan beatitude.

As an entomologist errant in the South Seas she has done excellent work. Her collection of insects from the New Hebrides consists of over 18,000 specimens including at least 1,100 different species, two-thirds of which are still undescribed. As the number of insects already described and placed in their order of creation is now approaching half a million, a long time may elapse before her collection is completely worked. For different species have to be sent to different specialists—thus some small water insects Miss Cheesman collected in Tahiti in 1923 were worked out by a Japanese authority in 1930. Indeed this task may take much longer, as is seen from the fact that some insects collected by Charles Darwin during his voyage on the Beagle have only been named recently.

She mentions some of the curious creatures she collected—e.g., fireflies with false eyes that light up at night, which, when crawling along a verandah railing, resemble tiny motor lorries with their big lanterns, and, when in flight, can be mistaken for a very brilliant meteor. Then there is the "signalling glow-worm" which gives regular flashes, three-quarters of a second bright and the remaining quarter dark, for all the world like certain lighthouses. It is possible to believe that such wondrous things originate, not in a conscious process of creative purpose, but out of the fortuitous concatenation of atoms!

Half Devil, Half Child.

But this illustrated travel-book, which is as fascinating and well-written as its predecessor, will appeal to those who know nothing of Entomology. It is a record of perilous adventures in places where the white traveller is never very welcome and often unwittingly offends the other-worldly susceptibilities of a very primitive people. The New Hebrides belong to the savage South Seas, not to the South Seas of a thousand romances.

In appearance and mentality the New Hebrideans are the very antithesis of the graceful, friendly, cleanly Polynesians (of, say, the Society Islands). They seem the natural product of their dark, sinister bush, and are most pitifully dominated by terror of the supernatural. Half devil and half child, they will never be brought into a Hollywood romance. The author gives us a close and sympathetic study of these strange survivals of the Stone Age, and her enchanting book will be highly valued as any recent work on the long life-drama of the human race.

CRIME CLUB NOVELS

ASTRONOMY, BOOTLEGGING,
GOLF AND GHOSTS.

The Fate of Jane McKenzie. By Nancy Barr, Mavity. Collins. 7s. 6d. net.

Tragedy at the Thirteenth Hole. By Miles Burton. Collins. 7s. 6d. net.

The Tall House Mystery. By A. Fielding. Collins. 7s. 6d. net.

The three Crime Club mysteries of this month are centred round astronomy, bootlegging, golf, and ghosts, with the first as the best of the three. Those who like a good thriller should not miss "The Fate of Jane McKenzie."

Jane McKenzie, of fabulous fortune, had financed the erection of a huge observatory, named after herself, on the top of a mountain. Her disappearance, on the day when she was expected to join the crowds at the observatory to view the solar eclipse, caused a great stir, but the police, hardly, enter into the tale. It is all reasoned out by a vivacious newspaper reporter, but many ingenious complications follow before he ultimately clears up the mystery.

Sauce for Murder.

Neither is there lack of interest in Miles Burton's story. Mr. Burton, a wealthy sauce manufacturer, is suddenly struck down while playing golf. Death appeared to have been caused by a blow from ball driven by his nephew. His collapse was seen, from a distance, by Inspector Arnold, who had chosen that district for a quiet holiday. The policeman's suspicions are aroused by the sight of three golf balls on the green. He pursues his usual policy, soon to come upon several clues.

The mystery is enhanced by an accident to a well-known local archaeologist, and by the discovery that the recipe of Burnsides famous sauce, known only to the maker himself, is missing. The tale is both brisk and compact, although the end will be found slightly disappointing to some readers.

In the last of these books, a house in Chelsea, reputed to be haunted, has been rented to a number of people for a house party. One of the guests relates that, as a child, he was so frightened by an apparition that he would now shoot, on sight, anything of a ghostly nature. During the night a shot is heard, and a body, with a bullet wound in the head, is found lying in the passage wrapped in a white sheet.

Mr. Fielding knows how to tell an exciting story, and his ending is well worthy of the thrilling atmosphere of the book.

LIFE OF A FAMOUS
INVENTOR

Interesting stories about a famous inventor's lighter moments are told in the "Life of Sir Charles Parsons," by Rollo Appleyard, published by Constable.

Sir Charles was the inventor of the modern turbine. He furnished each of his homes in Northumberland with workshops for experiments.

"These homes were centres of extraordinary activity. Elementary model turbines were there made, with cotton reels as drums and with cardboard strips as blades, held in position with sealing wax."

With his little daughter Rachel at his side, Parsons produced from the home workshop toys never before imagined for, permitted in a nursery. Among these was the Spider, a small engine with spirit fuel carried on three wheels, two small wheels and one large. The Spider travelled at high speed round the lawn. Rushing and shouting after it frequently was Parsons, chased by three dogs.

Home-Made Boilers.

"There was also the 'steam train' for conveying the precious load of two children. The boilers of the smaller engines were usually transformed 'tins' that had contained household polishes. A small flying machine with a spirit boiler was constructed and photographed in full flight."

"The pangs of the household in the midst of all these inventions were the only quantities that the inventor failed to compute. He discovered, however, that a steam perambulator with a biscuit tin as boiler caused maximum domestic agitation."

Parsons demonstrated his engines in the Turbinia, a specially constructed craft capable of a speed of 35 knots. The Turbinia made unexpected appearances.

Dramatic Appearances.

During the famous Naval Review at Spithead in 1907 in honour of Queen Victoria the Turbinia charged down the lines of cruisers and battleships. A picket boat was put out to try to stop the intruder, but the intruder was "blotting" at 30 knots, against which the speed of the picket boat was negligible. The picket boat was nearly run down, the commander took off his sword-belt, and prepared to swim, the ensign mast was cut in two, but the hull escaped damage.

"By the entry of the Turbinia into the Naval Review the attention of the Admiralty was focused upon the possibilities of marine propulsion for vessels of war."

Not long ago, in Kensington, in a block of new flats, a young policeman fell sixty feet down a lift shaft. He broke no bones, had a few abrasions, and the hospital report on him next morning was "quite comfortable."

When he reached the bottom of the shaft he had got up unaided. The official explanation of this miraculous escape is that there were struts jutting out every few feet, and that "he merely bumped from strut to strut," which sounds a very painful proceeding. But his name gave a guarantee of hardihood: he is twice a police constable, for his initials are "P. C." and his surname Brickett.

NEW REMEDIES FOR DISEASE

Secrets of Native Drugs

NEED FOR MEDICAL INVESTIGATION

There are hundreds, probably thousands, of native drugs in all parts of the world which would well repay medical study and in some cases provide new remedies for disease.

This was the view expressed by an authority at the Medical Research Institute at Mount Vernon, Hampstead, where a number of rare plants from British Guiana are now being examined.

"In Malaya alone," he said, "several hundreds of native drugs, prepared from plant, have been listed, all apparently with pronounced physiological actions—yet few of them have been scientifically examined."

Many of these native remedies, it was pointed out, belong to the powerful "alkaloid" group, which has given Western medicine, amongst other drugs, quinine, morphine and strychnine.

"Particular groups of plants," it was explained, "have the power of building up these drugs, but each species may give the process some slightly different chemical twist which may entirely alter the medical properties of the drug it produces."

In modern medicine the uses of drugs are so varied there must be a very considerable proportion of these natural products which would be of practical value—in some cases more effective than anything now available.

What is wanted is organised research with regular collectors on the spot who could guarantee to maintain supplies. There are plenty of chemists at English Universities who would be only too glad to have the opportunity to examine whatever they sent home, and when the necessary extracts had been made there would be no more difficulty in having their physiological properties tested.

The Arrow Poison.

"The value of having a collector on the spot," it was added, "is shown in our present investigation on the South American arrow poison, curare, which there is reason to hope may prove of medical value in treating one type of nervous disease."

As the result of experiments conducted by a young doctor, at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Mr. Wood, the curator of forests in British Guiana, was induced to collect eight 'strychnos' species of giant creeper from the rivers up country."

The bark from these specimens has been removed by workers at Mount Vernon, ground up in a coffee 'mill,' and the alkaloids which they contain extracted.

One of these has proved to contain 'curarine,' the active principle in the native arrow poison, and experiments have already been begun to test its medical usefulness.

This is one of the most powerful drugs known.

THE BEST SELLERS

THE BIBLE AT HOME AND ABROAD

The Bible is still far and away—the best seller. Including the New Testament and separate books, over ten million volumes were circulated last year. Though a small increase was shown over the figure for the previous months it was not quite a record year. In 1930, the circulation, exceeded twelve million volumes, to which figure it had grown from five millions in 1900, six millions and a half in 1910, and eight million and a half in 1920.

Seven million volumes went last year to Asia, and over four million, chiefly the New Testament and separate books, were sold in China. A whole Chinese Bible is, of course, a serious purchase, for it is a book of more than fifteen hundred pages, and costs the full day's wages of a working man. Still, the sale of the complete Bible in China mounts up in an astonishing manner.

At home the Bible has an enormous sale. Last year the circulation was 415,000 complete Bibles, 165,000 Testaments, and 277 sections.

Mr. Hikobei Yamanaka, a 68-year-old millionaire and former president of the Jozo Railway Company, was found dead on the beach at Atami on June 8 after being missing from his home in Mutsudo-cho, Ebago, Prefecture. It is believed he committed suicide by jumping from a 300-foot precipice at Soganoura, as his body was discovered in several places and several bones were broken when it was found by fishermen.

SMILING THROUGH.

(CHAPTER 4.)

The dust of forty years had gathered on the table which seemed to have been set for breakfast for one. The stranger examined it with grave curiosity. He picked up a large silver spoon, and looked at the crest.

Kathleen and Willie looked at each other as the stranger vanished from their range of vision.

"Did you see the way he looked at the silver?" asked Willie.

Oh, don't be silly Kathleen said. All right, but he is probably a criminal of some sort.

"Do you know" his face is familiar to me."

"We should never have come in here, Kathleen."

"Hush!"

The stranger's voice was heard from the dining room, warm with surprised rapture.

"Oh Boy," Kathleen looked up with renewed interest.

The dining room door was empty and shadowy. The light of the stranger's candle approached, then the young man himself appeared holding the candlestick aloft, and something under the other arm.

As he started across the hall Willie said:

He has got something under his arm. He came smilingly in under their curious eyes, set the candlestick on the table with three long stemmed wine glasses he held in the other hand. Then, from under his arm he produced a dust-crust, cobwebby dark bottle. The very thing for you—old port, he said to Kathleen, smiling.

Eighteen forty seven, Kathleen said, looking at the label. Forty seven Willie echoed awed.

Best I could find—any port in a storm, the stranger said as he smiled glowingly at Kathleen.

Good Lord—do you realize that stuff is worth about thirty shillings a bottle! Willie protested. "It can be too good," the other man said.

"But my good man—you surely don't intend to open it?"

I am doing my best. Have you a corkscrew? Certainly not, I say this isn't right; it's not your property. The other young man realized that Willie took him for a lawless person of some sort, and was amused. Oh that's alright, I have a way of taking what I want, when I want it. And there's no one here to stop you, Kathleen said.

"Ah! There we are; the young man said as he loosened the cork. Perhaps we should introduce ourselves. I am Willie Cecil Ainley of the Towers. My Father's Colonel Ponsonby Ainley; Willie told him.

Really? Delighted!

He turned aside and started to pour the wine. Willie shot a glance at the amused Kathleen, calling her to witness this confirmation of his suspicions. But she was smilingly watching the other boy as he filled a glass. Just a very little—that enough—When, she said, Won't you join us; the stranger asked Willie. "Certainly not."

He gave Kathleen a look of warning and reproof. Meanwhile the stranger filled his glass. Kathleen seated herself on the stool, facing the fire. The stranger leaned against the mantelpiece, glass in hand. They smiled warmly at each other, as they sipped their wine. "Not bad is it?" Very fair indeed; Kathleen answered. Here's to your health, your honour—and the health of all your descendants, great and small. That's a mighty handsome toast; the stranger said.

It's an Irish toast and the best I know. May you keep as young, and as pretty as you are until doomsday—and never forget the man who wished it. Willie stood by a shuttered window, his hands in his pockets. He shot a glance of unspeakable scorn in the direction of the pair. What I have missed all these years by never drinking—uncles port; Kathleen said. I think you are making a mistake, Willie. I don't think I am. Do you know I think I'll be taking a little more—And why not, as you'd say; the stranger said as he refilled her glass.

Old wine makes new friends; he remarked. They sipped their wine together Kathleen grew expansive. I wonder now as I look at you, did we ever meet before? Sorry but we haven't—I should've had forgotten. Could you be Irish too? She asked. I could if I saw enough of you; If you're not Irish, then you're American. How did you guess?

By the way you said "ghostly."

How should I say it? If you mean how do I say it—ghostly? Gawdly! she shuddered. Oh, never mind don't worry about it. And what are you doing in England? she asked. I came over to join up. There was a muffled snort of unbelief from Willie. But it's not your way, Kathleen reminded him. Well I'm half English and a scrap of a scrap. I like that, Kathleen said lifting her glass to him approvingly. They both sipped their wine smilingly. You know this is very scandalous of us. But I don't believe he'd mind—Who? She lifted her glass toward the painting over the mantelpiece. The owner? The young man glanced up at the shadowy painting. Sudden interest flushed into her face. He stepped to the table, picked up the candleabra, moved to the picture and held up the light. As he stood looking up at the picture, surprised and moved. Jeremy Wayne; the young man read above Kathleen came beside him, looked up at the picture with him. Isn't he a romantic figure? She asked. I love that devil—take—you look! And he's so handsome with it. Do you know, you're not un—She stopped suddenly as the young man turned to look at her. She looked at him and a little gasp broke from her. Now she realised why his face had seemed so familiar. She glanced quickly up at the picture, again, then back at him. That's my father he said. Your father? I'm Kenneth Wayne. Her gaze came slowly from the portrait to his face. Why—why—this is romance she said. You're telling me? They stood for a moment, each held by the others gaze, then Kathleen broke the spell with a little nervous laugh. Kenneth did like to come to my own funeral, she said. Then, though embarrassed by their own self-consciousness, they broke into a peal of mutual mirth together. The days and the months passed, and Kathleen fell in love with the son of Jeremy Wayne, but her Uncle's hostility was so violent that he often said that he would rather see her dead than married to the son of Jeremy Wayne's. The old story that reached its end in the mound in the churchyard unfolded itself in vision as John told it, with the intent of making the girl see that the marriage she contemplated would be monstrous. Long ago, when John and the exquisite girl loved each other as no two ever loved before, Jeremy Wayne's jealousy had driven him to frenzy. He swore he would not give Mooneyan up, and when in her bridal veil she stood at the altar plighting her troth to John, Jeremy had rushed into the Church, brandishing a gun. It was aimed at John, but Mooneyan threw herself in the path of the bullet. There on the altar steps she died her last words a promise to John that she would come back. So poignant were the romance and the tragedy portrayed by old Uncle John that Kathleen could not bring herself to deny him the pledge he demanded. She would see no more of Jeremy Wayne's son. But love was too forceful to permit such a pledge to stand, and before long she and Kenneth were planning to marry—a memory for him to carry to the battle front, a memory for her to live upon while she waited for his return. Sir John frustrated this plan by the threat to withdraw from her his shelter and support. Kenneth, feeling it would be childish to permit her to make such a sacrifice, argued down Kathleen's reckless desire to defy her uncle. When the war was over, Captain Kenneth Wayne, crippled, dropped by the old place to gather a few belongings before he sailed home to America. Kathleen seeing the light, burst in on him while he was saying farewell to imagined pictures of her. He told her, with devastating finality, that time had changed his feelings. Her humiliation and heartbreak vented themselves on her uncle, who came between her and Kenneth when Kenneth wanted her even as she wanted him. John tortured in his conscience because he knew from Doctor Owen the real reason for Kenneth's change of feeling, gained the final victory over himself by telling her the few words necessary to send her back to the son of Jeremy Wayne. Now at last Mooneyan came back to John. They met, ethereal figures both young as they were on their bridal day. Is this death? If so, how foolish to be afraid of it. If people knew what they would find at the end of the road, they would go smiling through all the years.

"ROME EXPRESS"
IN THE U.S.

TO BE SHOWN AT THE
KING'S THEATRE

Following upon its record breaking reception in its country of origin Rome Express the Gaumont British super has now been acclaimed in unique terms by the entire U.S. Press.

The following extracts from American reviews give convincing and vivid indication of the success achieved in that country by the production.

"They are but a scant selection from a long list of adulatory criticisms. New York City 'Mirror'.

"It is a skilfully constructed, brisk and baffling mystery picture, admirably acted and produced with greater finish than the most of the British films."

Brooklyn, N.Y. "Eagle."

"...acclaimed as one of the outstanding achievements of the British studios. Such praise was not unjustified, for Rome Express is indeed one of the superior talkies of the season."

New York City "News."

"Here's a dramatic, actionful picture—the cleverest yet to reach here from England's shores."

New York City "Journal."

"Rome Express on display at the New Roxy Theatre this week turns out to be excellent entertainment, surprisingly excellent. A thrilling, well contrived and expertly acted and directed melodrama."

New York City "Sun."

"On a par with the best California products."

New York City "American."

"As fine a photograph as the season's screens have seen."

"World Telegram," New York.

"At last there is an English picture that one can welcome with rousing huzzahs."

"Post," New York.

"Not only a sort of milestone in English film production, but one of the most entertaining shows of the season."

San Francisco "Examiner."

"This unusual film discloses one of the most brilliant feats in direction I have ever seen...the most skilfully enacted and imaginative thing that has come here from the English studios."

"Washington Evening Star."

"Rome Express...is the surprise picture of the year. It is smooth, exciting, and roars along on its track to a sleek and satisfying climax."

"Washington Post."

"Rome Express is excitingly and extravagantly superlative in its every department."

"Philadelphia Public Ledger."

"A brilliant production is this so superbly executed, so completely removed from the cold lethargic unimaginative films, expertly directed, admirably acted picture."

COMING TO THE
KING'S THEATRE

ZANE GREYS

"THE GOLDEN WEST"

George O'Brien, Janet Chandler and Marion Burns play the leads in this Western Thriller. There is no more popular actor than this handsome young man. He portrays the first dual role of his career in this production, and is the perfect type for both. Janet Chandler is a beautiful blonde, has a carefully trained voice. Like George O'Brien she appears in a dual role. She is particularly effective in the scenes when she is held a terror-stricken prisoner in the Indian Settlement. Marion Burns has recently been in New York where she has played leading roles on the stage. These stars are supported by a powerful cast too numerous to mention here. The musical theme of the picture is "Home Folks" which is sung and played by many of the sequences; first by a negro chorus and later by a group of pioneers.

"TELL ME TO-NIGHT"

FILM WITH A VERY PRETTY HEROINE

The heroine of "Tell Me To-Night" is an exceedingly pretty Continental actress, Magda Schneider. Although only nineteen years of age she is a very well-known artist, having appeared in several successful plays and popular German films. It is interesting to note that prior to her appearance in the British film version of "Tell Me To-Night" Magda Schneider could not speak one word of English, yet in this film her enunciation is excellent. She is a most natural actress, putting over her part of the saucy heroine, with whom the great singer, Ferraro, is in love, with a pertness that is fascinating in the extreme.

Dark-haired, and brown-eyed, possessor of flashing white teeth, an infectious smile and saucy dimples, Magda Schneider is destined to become exceedingly popular with British filmgoers. "Tell Me To-Night" is having its final run at the Central Theatre to-day, an astonishing mixture of romance, comedy and singing, set against a background of beautiful Switzerland, this picture has never been bettered.

"FAST WORKERS"

SHOWING TO-DAY AT QUEEN'S THEATRE

B-r-r-r! The gun in the hands of John Gilbert splattered forth its spray of sound. It wasn't the grim-faced John Gilbert fighting for his life in "The Big Parade" this time. It was a John Gilbert in overalls, standing nonchalantly on a narrow girder of the tower of a rising skyscraper. The gun in his hands was a riveter's gun—a trip hammer.

Here was the thrilling moment of Gilbert's new starring picture, "Fast Workers," to be shown to-day at the Queen's Theatre Robert Armstrong, as his buddy, "Bucker" Riley, was going to push him off the skyscraper.

From a tiny platform above, Director Tod Browning was training two cameras on the scene. There must not be a big mishap—the scene could only be shot once. For all the precautions taken, the risk was too great. Hence the two cameras, where space ordinarily was convenient for only one. As the scene proceeded, the coolest member of the whole troupe was Gilbert himself. Armstrong, Vince Barnett, Warner Richmond, Sterling Holloway, and Robert Burns—fellow workmen on the skyscraper—were visibly nervous. So, too, was Mae Clarke, the girl in the cast.

He's Calm Under Fire.

Not that Gilbert, inwardly was without a qualm. But outwardly he is one of the most composed of all screen players under fire. At the most hazardous moments he can maintain a semblance of perfect calm. Even balancing himself high up on a steel girder for the big scene in "Fast Workers," he gave this impression.

For one of the scenes in "Fast Workers" he had a soufflé in a speakeasy with two burly waiters and a policeman. When they finally tossed him into the street his assailants were in complete disarray. All Gilbert had to do was straighten his tie and comb his hair. There is no conscious effort of his part to be fastidious. He was just born like that.

YUNNAN: PROGRESS AND DEVELOPMENT

MR. R. D. ARNOLD'S ADDRESS TO LOCAL ROTARY CLUBGlowing Account of the Province's Wealth and Stability

MODERNISATION OF THE CAPITAL

Mr. R. D. Arnold, of Yunnanfu, was the speaker at the Rotary Club yesterday when he gave the members an interesting talk on the progress and development of Yunnan.

Reference was made to the possibility of the authorities there constructing a road from Yunnan to the Yangtze, or through Kwangsi province to the Pearl River, linking Yunnan with Canton. These routes, if completed will be entirely under Chinese control.

The Hon. Dr. S. W. Tao presided and guests presented included Mr. G. L. Crawhall Wilson of Bangkok, Mr. P. M. Hodgson of Hong Kong and Rotarian A. J. Gorbam of Hamilton, Bermuda.

Before the address commenced, members stood in silence for a minute as a tribute to the memory of the late Mr. Chan Yue Teng, who was a member of the Club.

MINERAL AND AGRICULTURAL WEALTH

Mr. Arnold said:—To very many, the mere mention of Yunnan brings a mental picture of a far-isolated, almost inaccessible part of China. Off the beaten track Yunnan indeed is and it is true that there are far stretches of territory which are not easily reached. On the other hand Yunnanfu, the province capital, is only five days distant from Hong Kong, while many important parts of the province lie within easy reach, being within striking distance of the railway.

The journey is made by sea from Hong Kong to Haiphong, French Indo-China. This requires two days by direct steamer from Haiphong, the French railway extends to Yunnanfu. It is a journey of three days with day travel and night stops in comfortable inns. This is an interesting trip, involving as it does mountain travel over the French railway—a very good example of difficult railway construction.

Ideal Climate.

The climate of Yunnan in the high uplands is very pleasant the year round. No extremes of heat or cold are met. The long dry season in winter sometimes proves a bit trying but all in all it is a climate that may very well be described with superlatives. With such climate and such ease of approach, Yunnan has long been popular as a resort for the French people of Indo-China as well as from some visitors from Hong Kong, Canton, and even more distant localities. Hotel accommodation is generous but usually quite in demand for the summer season. Excursions to temples and other points of interest abound, so that most vacationists are enthusiastic about their holiday experiences. Non-vacationists, whom business or other interest take to Yunnanfu, generally cherish a desire for repeated visits.

Ever since the establishment of the Nanking regime, Yunnan has maintained loyalty to the Central Government. Of course, there is a great deal of local autonomy as in most outlying portions of China. The present Chairman of the Provincial Government, General Lung Yun, has been at the head of the Committee for nearly six years—years of some very real progress.

The Government's grip on the large areas included within the borders of Yunnan is quite effective when the difficulty of communication is considered. Much less trouble from petty banditry has been experienced in the last two years and travel now is considered quite safe.

Road Building.

In the realm of communication, the road-building programme is notable. A comprehensive plan for connecting all parts of the province with Yunnanfu has been worked out and is being followed. The progress on this has been very satisfactory to date. Points separated four or five days from the capital by old travel methods are now connected by motor bus and transport and as the roads are extended new districts are opened out.

The definite plan is to extend these services to the uttermost reaches of Yunnan. When it is remembered that that road construction in Yunnan is much more difficult than in most provinces, all the greater credit is due to those who have set themselves the task of seeing it through. Altitudes in Yunnan, beginning with 6,500 to 7,000 feet at Yunnanfu, rise to mountains of real height in the whole Northern section of the province making road construction and maintenance very difficult.

Another development is in the mining industry. Some rather extravagant or at least over enthusiastic reports of Yunnan's mineral resources have gone out in times past. There is no doubt that future greater activity in opening mines will be possible but it is realised that other developments, especially in transportation facilities, must precede.

Tin, Coal and Silver.

It was my privilege to travel from Haiphong recently with the Commissioner of Agriculture and Mining of Yunnan. He told how his present efforts are being centered in improvements in methods. For instance, the tin output of Kweichow and vicinity has, until recently, been of inferior quality requiring refining after reaching the Coast. He has been successful with the help of an expert British engineer to produce, right at the mines, tin of the fineness in demand upon the market, thus benefitting the mining industry of Yunnan immensely.

There is some coal being brought out but it is still of inferior quality. The better coal being beyond the point where it can be profitably transported. Railways or motor roads will gradually remedy this. Copper and other minerals are found and await future exploitation. The copper mines at Tungchuen were once one of the dependable sources of that metal for the Empire, but, more easily procured from abroad, it is now suffering a decline in its mountain inaccessibility. Further industrial improvements of known value and feasibility are on the programme ahead.

The currency of Yunnan is locally coined silver, and notes issued by the Fu Tien Bank, the Government bank of the province. Exchange as between Yunnan and Coast currencies, unfavourable for years, has recently become very serious indeed. The Government of Yunnan recently re-organised the financial structure. The Bank was re-opened as the New Fu Tien Bank. New notes have been issued and old notes are gradually being called in. A Hong Kong dollar at present is worth approximately $10 old Yunnan paper, while $10 of that paper are worth two Yunnan silver dollars or $2 of the new notes which are "stabilised" on the Yunnan silver. For a half year these notes have held up to this par value. This exchange situation have been devastating the business or other interests needing to import supplies into Yunnan. It must be improved before Yunnan's commercial enterprise can be restored to its former activities.

Foreign Trade.

Foreign business is represented by the Asiatic Petroleum, the Standard Oil Company, the Texas Company and several French firms including the Optorg and Descours and Cabaud. The Texas Company has had a Chinese manager from the beginning of its entry into the field last year, and the Socony have recently replaced their foreign manager with a Chinese representative, but other firms still have their European representatives.

The great bulk of imports and exports flows along the French railway, in and out through Indo-China. This roundabout route, involving freight charges, transit duty, etc., adds further burden to Yunnan business which has increasingly been felt. The Chinese frankly hope to establish their own transportation line through all Chinese territory and thus reserve for themselves the carrying business of Yunnan. One possibility is a route through to Szechuan and via the Yangtze. The second, and perhaps, more feasible outlet is to Kwangsi and via the river out through Canton. How long the practical working out of these schemes will require, remains to be seen, but it may be that a motor-road will begin to accomplish this and long before railways will prove possible.

Education.

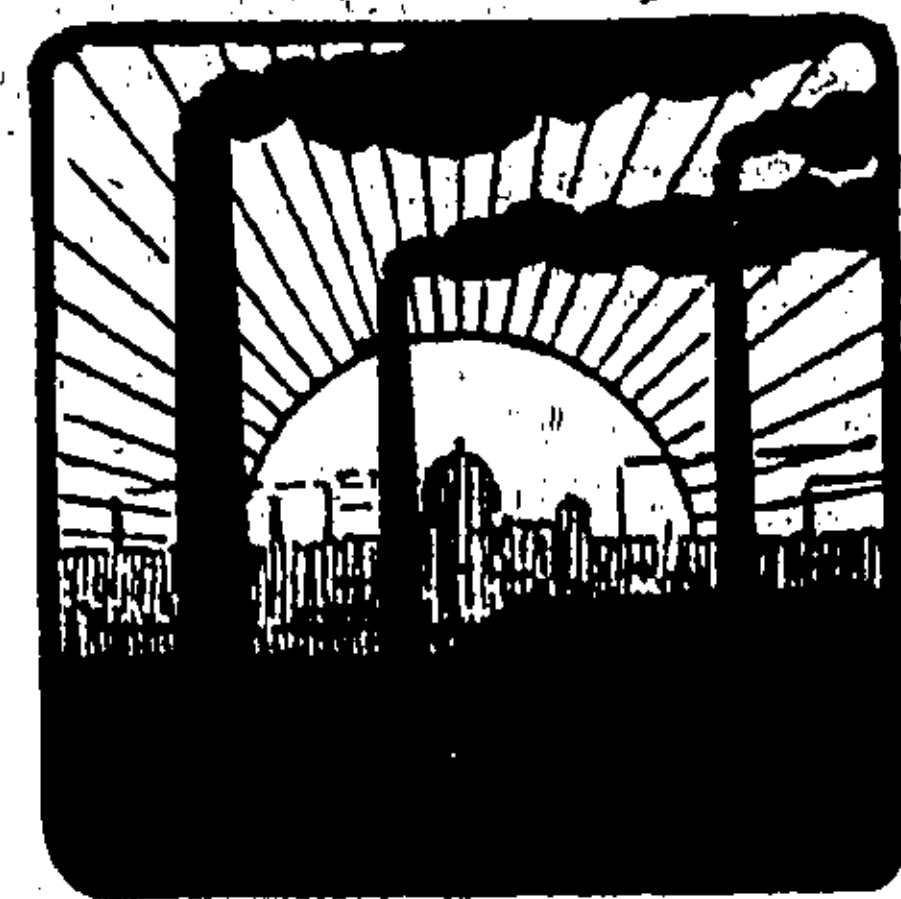

Education throughout the province is handicapped by the factors mentioned already. There is improvement being shown, even within the last year. Definite revenues are earmarked for educational work, so that financially this important function is faring better. In Yunnanfu and some of the larger cities there is a very successful effort to secure 100 per cent. compulsory attendance in primary Government supported schools. Tung Lu University, founded about ten years ago as a private institution by Governor Tan Chi Yao, is now under the Commissioner of Education and is bringing its curriculum and organisation into line as fast as possible for recognition as a university by the Ministry of Education at Nanking. Mission education has not been extensively established. There are well conducted schools of this type at Yunnanfu and Chaoting, but they fall far short of being adequate to the need and opportunity. There are well conducted middle schools and normal schools in Yunnanfu and in some of the larger cities throughout the province. Plans are on foot to send promising students to America, England and European countries for advanced special training. It is significant that positions of leadership in the province are now occupied by men thus trained years ago. This new effort is a recognition that this source of leadership has been neglected the last ten years, fewer having been able to go during this time.

for study. Inaccurately grouped as a whole under the name of Miao tribes, there abound many different groups of aborigines, especially in some of the far mountain districts, which they have been pushed by the Chinese during long years of contact. These people are rapidly receiving Chinese education and doubtless will eventually take their places as Chinese citizens. Major Davies made rather extensive studies of the various tribes and has recorded his findings in his book on Yunnan. Others, missionaries and explorers, have added to the information available concerning these interesting and hardy peoples. Yunnan's most important products are tin, tea, fruits, ham, opium, Chinese medicines, hides and bristles. (Continued on Page 7.)

VERITYS ELECTRIC FANS ARE KNOWN EVERYWHERE

Veritys Electric A. C. and D. C. Fans are used everywhere—in homes, offices, and factories, in shop windows, on board ship, etc.—they are of British manufacture throughout and the workmanship is excellent.

From the smallest pedestal model to a large ceiling fan with a 56" sweep each type is scientifically designed to give the highest efficiency under the most exacting climatic conditions.

The illustrations show four popular models. You cannot do better than specify a Verity fan for every purpose. Ask for full particulars of all types.

RABIES IN THE COLONY

Increase is "Possible"

NO ALTERNATIVE TO PRESENT POLICY

At the fortnightly meeting of the Sanitary Board yesterday, Mr. Wong Kwong Tin and Dr. Li Shu Fan asked several questions with regard to the reported outbreak of rabies in the Colony. Apart from that, however, there was no discussion of public interest, the rest of the business being of a routine nature.

Those present at the meeting were:—
Mr. T. Megarry (chairman), the Hon. Mr. A. G. W. Tickle, Dr. G. W. Pope, Messrs. Wong Kwong Tin, M. K. Lo, F. C. Chung, C. J. Roe (Secretary), and Ng Mui Kai (Assistant Secretary).

Possible Increase.

Mr. Wong Kwong Tin asked the following questions to which the answers are appended.

Q. Is it the opinion of the Colonial Veterinary Surgeon that an increase in the number of cases of rabies is imminent?

A. In the opinion of the Colonial Veterinary Surgeon an increase in the number of cases is possible, but it is hoped that the measures that have already been taken will prevent it.

Q. Can rabies be prevented by inoculation? If so, is the Government contemplating the provision of facilities for inoculation as is done in many countries?

A. Rabies in dogs can be prevented by the inoculation of a strain of vaccine, which has been proved to protect against infection by the "street virus" concerned. Understand that the provision of facilities by Government for such inoculation would be unnecessary, as private veterinary practitioners and supplies of the vaccine are available for the work in the Colony.

Q. Would it be feasible for dogs so inoculated to be provided with distinctive badges, rendering them immune from (i.) shooting (ii.) muzzling?

A. The department concerned considers such provision would not suffice to effect the desired objects. The maximum period for which inoculation gives immunity is twelve months; certificates of re-inoculation and renewal of badges would thus be required at the end of each twelve months; badges, however distinctive, could easily be counterfeited, and this stray dog, which is the source of danger, would be difficult to approach for close examination.

Dr. Li Shu Fan's questions and the answers were:—

Q. In how many years during the last ten have cases of canine rabies been known, entailing the enforcement of the Order for the restriction of dogs?

A. During the ten years 1923 to 1932 inclusive, a period of one hundred and four months. Such special restrictions of varying degrees of severity on the movement of dogs between various places within the Colony were in force for periods totalling approximately sixty-five months. During the same period of one hundred and twenty months a muzzling order was in force for periods totalling approximately sixty-four months. Such special restrictions on the movement of dogs were in force for part or whole of each of nine years of the period of ten years mentioned, and a muzzling order was in force for part or whole of each of seven years of these ten.

Q. In view of records, is it not a reasonable conclusion that the anti-rabies measures as at present adopted are at best only likely to temporarily control the spread of the disease, and cannot possibly stamp it out permanently, or even for any lengthy period?

A. This inference would not appear to be justified. Interruptions of some duration occur between outbreaks, tending to show that the disease is not continuously endemic, but is stamped out periodically by the restrictions, which, of course, continue or remain unrelaxed for some time after the worst of the outbreak has passed. Fresh outbreaks are attributed to surreptitious re-introduction of the disease into the Colony from outside and its spread within the Colony in periods of relaxation.

Q. Apart from the present, rigid measures of muzzling, restriction of movement, capture or destruction of unmuzzled dogs, notification and quarantine, are no other effective means known of combating the spread of the disease?

A. No other practicable methods are available.

Q. Do you consider anti-rabies inoculation in dogs effective?

A. It is advised that provided a "specific" vaccine is used the inoculation is as effective as other methods; where a "stock" vaccine is used there is an additional element of uncertainty.

Q. Is such vaccination procurable in the Colony at present? If so, will you indicate how and where?

A. Such vaccination with 'stock' vaccine is performed by veterinary practitioners in the Colony at present.

Q. Have there been any instances in the Colony of cases of rabies occurring among horses and cats during the last ten years? If so, how many?

A. There is no such case on record during the last ten years.

Q. If the answer to Question (b) is in the affirmative would Government be willing to consider the desirability of experimenting with a view to producing a local strain of the rabies virus which will serve as an effective vaccination against the disease, also bearing in mind the necessity of adequate supply and low cost of production, in order to bring it within reach of the General Public?

A. In view of the answer to Question (b), this question does not arise.

HUSBAND FOUND "GUILTY"

Attacked Wife's Paramour with Choppers

THREE MONTHS' SENTENCE

"Prisoner, the jury has, in my opinion, very rightly, found you guilty of the second and lesser charge. I am quite satisfied that you had very great provocation in that you had good cause to believe, that your wife and third witness were committing adultery together. That, however, does not altogether justify you in the eyes of the law in the action which you took. You had assistance ready to hand and you might have fetched assistance, instead of which you lost control of yourself, which you should have kept, and made this attack on the paramour."

The sentence of the Court, therefore, is that you go to prison with hard labour for 3 months. You have already been detained two months and I will date your period of imprisonment from April 22, the day of the offence."

The above remarks were made by the Puisne Judge at the conclusion of the Criminal Sessions trial yesterday when Lam Tai Hung, alias Lam Kan, of 3, Gilman's Bazaar, was charged with wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm Li Kwok Hong, known as Li Hung, of 154, Des Voeux Road Central, at the former address on April 22. He also entered a similar plea on a charge of malicious and unlawful wounding.

Mr. R. C. H. Lim, appeared for accused, and Mr. H. K. Holmes, Crown Solicitor, prosecuted.

The jury consisted of Messrs. F. F. Duckworth, A. H. Harbord, G. Duncan, jr., G. R. Payne, S. Feldman, Yeung Kwong Chui, B. C. Field.

Opening the Crown case, Mr. Holmes said the three persons chiefly concerned were the accused, the wounded man, and the former's wife, who was the "woman in the case." By this phrase he did not wish to make insinuations against the woman, but she was involved, and how far she was involved would be a matter for the jury to determine.

Li Hung and accused were formerly joint tenants in an opium business which was apparently illicit because it was raided at the beginning of this year. The two men remained acquainted however, after their business relations ceased. Accused, his wife, and a small boy who was related to them, lived in a front cubicle at 3, Gilman's Bazaar, and on April 21, the husband returned by the night boat from Macao where he had spent some days. He visited friends on his arrival in Hong Kong and it was not until 3 a.m. that he returned home.

According to his own statement, accused discovered Li Hung in bed with his wife, the small boy also being in the cubicle. Li Hung would seek to give an innocent explanation of his presence there and would say that the woman had sent for him because he was going back to the country and she wanted him to take a message to her mother.

Without doubt, Lam Kan was jealous of his wife and suspected her, and his account of what followed was probably an honest account. He would say that he heard his wife telling Li Hung that her husband had not returned from the country, and that she added a disparaging nickname. Accused became very angry and, going quietly down to the kitchen, he obtained two choppers and returned to the cubicle. After an unsuccessful attempt to scale the partition he forced open the door and attacked Li Hung with a chopper in each hand, inflicting several wounds on his head. The wife intervened and managed to hold her husband while the wounded man ran into the street but accused broke away, and continued the pursuit until he was stopped and arrested by a police reservist.

Accused in a statement to the police said that he had been married for several years and had come to Hong Kong the previous year. Describing the events of the early morning he had said:—"I walked up the stairs quietly and stood listening on the stairs for half an hour. I heard voices and laughing." He added that he had persuaded a man who wore wooden shoes to walk up the stairs with him so that his wife would be unable to recognise his tread. After the attack and the chase, he returned to the house with the policeman and saw Li Hung coming out of the house with some clothing under his arm. The injured man fell down with a cry that he was dying.

Dr. G. H. Thomas, of the Government Civil Hospital, said Li Hung had extensive though not very serious wounds on his head when admitted to the hospital.

At the conclusion of the Crown case, the defendant went into the witness box and re-affirmed his previous statement in which he had said that he lost control of himself and struck Li Hung with two choppers. He added that he had previously seen his wife and Li Hung in the same bed and on that occasion he had been with them.

HOMEWARD BOUND

III.—MEMORIES OF LONDON AND THE COUNTRYSIDE

KEW GARDENS AND HAMPTON COURT

[BY A DISILLUSIONED TRAVELLER]

The nearer I approach 'familiar things the longer my pen hovers poised above the page.

For the benefit of absentees I got down these dates, March 21 crosses; March 23 Lent lilies; April 1 hyacinths and daffodils; May 1 tulips, May 15 rhododendrons.

The Londoner can follow the whole delightful sequence in his own suburban gardens, at Hampton Court or Kew; and even in his own metropolitan front garden at St. James.

I single out St. James as perhaps the most charming of all central London gardens; though the little embankment gardens, which provided a country seat for Eros while his official perch at Piccadilly was undergoing reconstruction, runs it close.

At St. James a particularly fat and friendly cock pheasant greets the pedestrian striking across the park from Queen Anne's gate and "sets him" as far as the bridge across the lake, while an equally plump hen browses among the polyanthus beds. And at St. James a "triangle" of ducks (two male and one female) spend the morning (and I daresay the afternoon too), taking wide swoops over the Foreign Office and Buckingham Palace and then cutting off their engines and gliding downward to the water like veritable seaplanes. There are parts, too, of St. James where a little mild cricket is legitimate within certain age limits; and parts where a man, if he is tired, can stop quietly on the grass and fling himself down at full length, without let or hindrance and even surprise.

Hampton Court and Kew.

I have named Hampton Court and Kew as though they were alternative; of course they are not. The difference is broadly that at Kew you will find "antirrhinums" but at Hampton Court only "snapdragons." Kew is the happy hunting ground of the expert in botany and horticulture; but Hampton Court is the lover of English gardens.

Kew has its great glasshouse; but Hampton Court has the essential background of an English garden in the mellow red-brick of the palace.

I must have written the above shortly after a visit to Hampton Court, and now, after a visit to Kew, I take it all back. There are parts of Kew, down along the river side, where the ground beneath the beach trees is a carpet of blue bells, and azaleas flame out, in unexpected dumps, and great banks of rhododendrons blaze into colour like huge crimson cumulus clouds. This is no place of experts but the very home of Pan and Faunus.

YUNNAN: PROGRESS AND DEVELOPMENT

Salt is boiled in various districts, furnishing the needs of the population and revenue for the Government. Yunnan's demands are met by import of cotton yarn, flour, leather, iron for construction work, cement, and endless miscellaneous manufactured articles.

Yunnan.

Yunnan itself is fast becoming modernised. An inadequate electric supply is now being improved to meet the growing demand. This is from water-power and is being cared for by the German Siemens Co. Wholesale widening of more than a mile of business streets has relieved traffic in the busy sections immeasurably. A gradual widening was already going on but two years ago it was decided that it must be done with greater despatch. Part of the same scheme has been the dismantling of a short section of the old wall and the city establishment of an entirely new business street on the ground.

A water system installed years ago has fairly adequately met the needs of the people but it is now evidence that a larger supply must be sought. Several daily papers in Chinese are issued. News is received by radio so that it is up-to-date. The local radio administration have been demonstrated broadcasting of news and local musical talent, through loud speakers on the streets, much to the interest of the people. There are two cinemas, one of which is just now negotiating for sound pictures apparatus. It is reported that an ice plant is soon to be installed. There is also an effort being made to start a cement plant. If this can be consummated, it will serve a great need indeed as one barrel of cement costs at Yunnanfu about $22 or $23 Mex. Small factories and weaving establishments are working regularly and apparently fairly prosperously. Branches of the Commercial Press, Chung Hwa Book Company, and World Book Company seem to be thriving.

All in all, Yunnanfu and with it Yunnan Province, is on the move. Given reasonable peace and time, the Yunnan of the future ought to take its destined place as an increasingly useful province of the Chinese Republic. (Applause.)

A vote of thanks on behalf of the Club was proposed by Mr. J. D. Bush.

Impending Departure of Mr. Maynard.

Mr. M. F. Key, referring to the near departure of Messrs. Maynard and Barringer, of the office of the American Trade Commissioner, said that no doubt members of the Club would like to thank Mr. Maynard for the hard work he had put in as secretary of the Club.

The Hon. Dr. Tso, speaking as Chairman, thanked Mr. Maynard for the strong support the latter had given the Club as Secretary.

Mr. Maynard said he was sorry he was leaving the Colony and particularly sorry as he was leaving his contact with Rotary more than with any Club to which he belonged. He thought that the Rotary Club in Hong Kong filled a much-needed want and that the Club was well worth while.

Lately the newspapers have been severe about Kew's pagoda, calling it incongruous and altogether ugly. This is too severe. True the design lacks all the vivacity of tip-tilted roofs and shining enamel tiles and swinging bells which we associate with the genuine article, and, in consequence, the pagoda looks dull and ponderous in the broad light of day; but the proportions are good enough, and at dark against a clear sky its silhouette is a thing of real beauty.

London Pride.

The general improvement in taste of Londoners and the determination to preserve the beauty spots of the town is very marked. The proposal to erect a tall block of offices near the Abbey has produced a babel of letters to the "Times," and the threat to demolish Adelphi Terraces—the "chef-d'oeuvre" of Adam's "bothers"—produced a debate in the Lords. The protestants should be careful not to protest too much. In the same improved taste which throws them up has thrown up a greatly improved standard of architecture and we can be tolerably sure, though some familiar thing of beauty be lost, that some beautiful new thing will be given in return. For example the great white Shell-Mex. Building, though modern of the modern, is at least as beautiful as the elegant old Adelphi above which it towers to-day. The danger is that, when prosperity returns, the arts will be shown the door; and not only will all the "Adelphi Terraces" be ruthlessly swept away but some long-lived atrocity erected in their places. London has many examples of such disasters.

Memories.

A hurried cast to the north-west of England leaves on the net of memory the following things: Three gems among English villages, Burford, plodding quietly uphill, Nuneham symmetrically and precisely spaced, Broadway a casual succession of mellow grey stone; the turrets of Brewham Church tower; the chapter-house of Worcester; the "battered" retables of Gloucester; daffodils in Gloucester fields and daffodils, professedly a penny a bunch, in sunny Gloucester lanes; and this for the mantle piece of a commercial room in a Worcester hotel, "What is the use of having Roy's ideas on a push-bike income?"

I lay down my pen on this sentiment and on another found by chance in a casual ramble. It is a strange thing that on sea voyages, when there is nothing to be seen but sky and sea, men should make diaries; but in land travel where so much is to be observed, for the most part they omit it.

TOWARDS STABILISATION

The temporary deadlock at the Economic Conference may for the moment be broken by the American proposals. How far the suggestions will be acceptable to nations that do not produce silver and have little enough reserves of gold remains to be seen. Without the proviso suggesting a control of the marketing of silver the scheme would obviously be impossible. The object is, of course, to get back to those happy, pre-war days when exchange rates between the European Powers were practically fixed, and only the existence of two important silver basis countries, India and China, gave much scope for making fortunes out of exchange.

As every one knows, since the war the almost primitive simplicity of exchange has disappeared. Some countries remain "on gold," many are "off gold," and a few neither on nor off. This is no place to discuss why this has happened; it must suffice to record the fact and to point out that certain advantages accrue to a country on gold and other advantages to those that have left the gold-standard. But when one cannot judge certainly the value of a country's money, by reason of the fact one cannot measure it by the "yardstick," gold (and that is what leaving the gold-standard means) one has to fall back on guessing the value of that currency in terms of the money of other countries. These guesses are subject to sudden and sometimes violent changes, and these sudden and uncertain changes are obviously inimical to the trading and the manufacturing community. On the other hand, the depreciation of the currency of one country, especially a manufacturing country, gives (for a while, at any rate) that country an advantage in the world markets over other countries whose currencies remain steady. This naturally causes a certain strain on good feeling, for the country which from choice or accident has preserved a steady currency is apt to regard this as a token of its financial rectitude and to look upon the manufacturer ers of those countries that have a depreciated currency as "enjoying" an unfair advantage. Such a view, of course, ignores the disadvantages of currency depreciation, and, more important still, the fact that the advantages of depreciation are generally short-lived.

But while there are advantages to be gained by unsettled exchanges (chiefly, it is to be feared, by speculators), the commercial community is undoubtedly right in a desiring to get back, if possible, to conditions of greater stability and certainty in foreign exchange. How this is to be achieved, and whether gold will be restored to its former position as the stabilising element in these matters, is already causing by no means gentle breezes at the Conference. But for those who may be inclined to think that gold is the only, or the only effective, stabiliser, we would commend a study of the British Exchange Equalisation Fund.

The Fund was set up by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in his 1932 Budget. He took powers to borrow up to £150 millions, and this money, plus money from a former small fund for assisting the sterling-dollar exchange, was to be used for the purpose of keeping the exchange rate for the pound on a fairly even basis. It was directed more particularly to mitigating, if not obviating entirely, the ill effects on the exchange of what is known as "refuge capital." This refugee capital, which has become somewhat of a nuisance to trade, deserves a word or two of explanation. Largely owing to loss of confidence during the last few years of depression and monetary upheavals there has appeared in the international money market large accumulations of liquid capital. This being capable of being moved about conveniently from centre to centre, and so used as a counter for the operations of speculators, has exercised a disturbing influence upon foreign exchanges, and the sterling exchange has suffered considerably from this movement to the detriment of ordinary trade. Any advantage arising from the arrival of this refugee money may be more than offset by its sudden withdrawal. Such money is very timid and liable to panic; it may be observed, which in no small measure helps to create.

To avoid, therefore, violent and perilous fluctuations to the exchange value of sterling, which arise from this abnormal state of affairs, was the purpose of the Fund. By checking an unwanted inflow of capital, or alternatively, its too-rapid withdrawal, the normal operation of the foreign exchange market has been assisted. The fund has bought and sold foreign currency, and also gold, and has so far been operated without any loss. But recent events have caused an even greater flight of foreign money into sterling than was the case in the contrary direction in 1931, when Great Britain was forced off gold. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, therefore, deemed it wise in his recent Budget to increase the total of this Fund and it has now been augmented to a total of £275 millions. CANTON NOTES

Obtaining Public Opinion

REVIVAL OF STUDY OF CLASSICS AND PO KAP.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, June 19.
Marshal Chen Chai Tong is reported to be taking steps for the provision in different parts of the city special boxes for the reception of opinions and suggestions from the general public which are invited on all matters bearing on the military or civil administration of the province. Complaints of existing conditions which may be unsatisfactory, and proposed remedies offered, are stated to be welcome, but the public is warned against the mis-use of the facilities thus extended for the pursuit of personal gains or grudges. Plans for the reconstruction and the development of the province to supplement what the leaders have in mind are also asked for, and their authors will be suitably awarded with appointments when their schemes are found practicable.

Chinese Classics.

Marshal Chan has also made a recommendation to the local authorities, for the re-introduction in the schools of the province the study of the old classics, which are somewhat neglected these days. The present proposal is for the educational authorities to insist upon the study of the classics as a chief subject in the curricula of all schools, primary, secondary and collegiate. Special selections from the classics are to be prepared to suit the various grades. At the same time, the personal conduct of students will be made one of the principal considerations in the determination of progress made by students at the end of the terms.

The "Po Kap" System.

Another proposal for which Marshal Chan is also stated to be responsible is the revival in the province of the Po Kap system (the Chinese titling system) whereby the local residents of a village are made responsible for local order. This action is deemed opportune in view of the success in the pacification of various parts of the province, where bandits are reported to have been gradually suppressed. The maintenance of local peace in these rural districts is expected to be helped by the enforcement of the Po Kap system. A set of revised regulations adaptable to present conditions is being drawn up in connection with the application of the system.

Shanghai-Canton Air Service.

The early inauguration of the much-talked-of air service between Shanghai and Canton is believed to be imminent as a result of recent investigations by officials of the China National Aviation Co. which is undertaking the provision of the service. The Company is opening a local office at the premises of the Y.M.C.A. and arrangements are being made with the military authorities for the installation of wireless equipment in connection with the proposed service.

SIAMESE CIVIL SERVANTS

NOT ALLOWED TO WRITE FOR THE PAPERS.

BANGKOK, June 7.
The Government has issued an order that from now on civil servants are not allowed to write for the papers. There have been some appalling leaks in days not so long ago, and always there have been clerks or other grades, willing to pass on news which has come to their knowledge in their work, to the vernacular press for a price. Whether the new rule can be wholly enforced is another matter, but if it strikes terror into the junior ranks some good will have been done. At the time Siang was preparing to enter into the late war responsible Ministers privy to what was afoot, and knowing the danger of a leak if documents left their own homes at night to ensure that nothing got out beforehand. Their efforts were justified by the surprise and success of the declaration when it was made.

The leakage in regard to the cables sent when the details for Bangkok's memorial bridge were being communicated to London is another instance of energy in the wrong direction, while only a year or two ago matriculation students had to sit twice for the same examination because the papers went astray beforehand.

The State Pie.

Democracy in France has reduced the idea of the State to a pie in which every one has the right to thrust a finger. This is illustrated by an analysis of the 532 Bills deposited by deputies in the first six months of last year.

There were 433 designed to serve local or particular interests, while of the remaining 100 not more than a dozen could be considered of national importance. The others were either highly tendentious politically, or impracticable, or frivolous. In the frivolous category was a Bill to change the official description of boars from "savage animal" to "wild beast."

Rising to the Occasion.
A spectator of the Anglo-Italian football match in Rome relates that the "biggest thrill" was not provided by the players but by ex-King Amanullah in the Royal Box. Amanullah occupied a seat behind the Italian Princesses and Signor Mussolini.

At one point in the game the ball was kicked high and out. It was seen to descend like a howitzer shell right over the Duce's head.

Amanullah rose to his feet, kept his eye on the ball, drew back his fist, judged his timing beautifully, took a step forward, and met the ball with a perfect punch than Hibbe might have envied. As it soared back to the field of play Amanullah stood transfixed with a gleam of boyish triumph in his eye.

Then suddenly remembering that he was of the company of kings he glanced nervously around and meekly resumed his seat.

A Stickler Minister.

The gum-chewing habit as practised by some of the players in American films seldom adds to the popularity of the pictures when shown in England. In the United States, however, it is regarded as a homely touch.

One of its devotees there is the new Postmaster-General, Mr. James Farley. Doubtless his department, which from the nature of its business consumes large quantities of gum, ensures him an adequate supply with the usual trade discount.

By Gum!

Reading of his appointment, a schoolboy—whose master had denounced gum-chewing as a bad habit and declared that no gum-chewer could succeed—wrote asking Mr. Farley, "What part has gum played in your success?" To this inquiry the Postmaster-General replied: "Dear John, I don't know whether gum played any part in my success, but it was not a retarding factor."

The boys at the school, are still sticking to it.

Vengeance of the Bees.
A strange story of bees' vengeance comes from Buenos Aires. In Marianas a dog chasing a swarm of bees caught and killed the queen.

Thereupon the entire swarm swept down on the animal and stung him to death. Their anger still unappeased, the bees attacked all the dogs crossing their path.

Deferred Casualties of the War.

Sir Frederick Maurice, president of the British Legion, told the women's section that the Prince of Wales never did a wiser thing than when he started the fund that bears his name to provide pensions of ten shillings a week for men of fifty years of age and over who are prematurely aged because of their war service overseas. The Legion hopes that this year up to a thousand pensions may be issued, but Sir Frederick was certain that three thousand were needed.

Field Marshal Lord Robertson, he said, died suddenly and from the same cause as Lord Haig. The last few weeks had seen the premature deaths of the Chief of the Air Staff and of the General Officer Commanding the Eastern Command. These men had died suddenly in what one would have thought to be the prime of their lives. If such were the effects of the war on the high command one could imagine, he said, what happened to the men who had served in the trenches and in the North Sea. The effect of the war was now becoming increasingly apparent.

Sir Frederick told how the ex-service patients in a certain Ministry of Pensions hospital had been so moved by what they heard about individual cases of prematurely aged and disabled men that they decided to go without their Christmas treat and, to send the money saved to the Prince of Wales's Fund.

That he was compelled to steal was the plea of a Chinese before Mr. Wynne-Jones in Court yesterday, when he admitted the theft of a jacket from a friend with whom he had been living. Defendant claimed that as complainant did not comply with his request for the return of a money loan, he stole. Sentence of one month was ordered.

A summons against Mr. W. C. Loyres, 8, Lai Kwan Avenue, Tai Hang Road, first floor, for alleged assault on two amahs, employed on the ground floor, was mentioned before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court yesterday. Mr. Horace Lo appeared for complainants. It was stated that defendant is at present in hospital. The hearing was adjourned.

A fine of $4,500 or six months' hard labour was imposed on To Lai, unemployed, by Mr. Wynne-Jones yesterday for the possession of 456 counterfeit French Indo-China twenty cent pieces. Defendant was arrested soon after the arrival of the s.s. Tin Yat. Defendant admitted that he went to the ship to get the money. He had been here for two weeks, having been sent by a man for the purpose of collecting the money.

A market coolie employed in the officer's Mess at Mt. Austin, was charged before Mr. Schofield yesterday with theft of a silver spoon, a silver fork, and a silver-handled knife. It was stated that the Mess Corporal found the articles missing when he checked up the mess silver and on conducting a search found the articles in the defendant's basket. The case was remanded for the parents of the defendant to attend court.

With every possible feeling of sympathy for the Volunteer movement we read and gladly published Lt.-Colonel Chapman's letter in our Thursday morning issue, inviting recruits for the local Volunteers. Unfortunately we omitted one word from his opening quotation thereby, as he afterwards said, materially altering the sense. The quotation should correctly have read as follows:

"The first duty of every able-bodied citizen is not only to be ready to defend his country in time of war, but to prepare himself for that duty in time of peace. Englishmen alone among all the nations of the world shirk this duty." The splendid example of our Australian colonies, in making every able-bodied Australian serve in the National Guard, will bring home to us a sense of shame." Hong Kong Daily Press, June 2, 1908.

H. G. WELL'S BROTHER

DEATH OF BACHELOR WHO HOBBY WAS CLOCKS

Mr. Francis Charles Wells, brother of H. G. Wells, the noted died suddenly while sitting by bedside at home in the village of Liss, near Petersfield.

Mr. Wells, a life-long bachelor, lived behind the shop, where he was connected with a business connected with machines, clocks, and barometers. When he failed to answer the door bell, Miss Brent, his housekeeper, went downstairs and found him lying dead on the floor. He had apparently collapsed from heart failure, and struck his head on a table.

Known as "Frank."

For more than thirty years Wells had been popular in the trick for his generosity and cheeriness, yet retiring, person. In Liss he was affectionately known as "Frank."

He was a skilled engineer, clock-making and other involving delicate mechanism, his special hobby.

"Frank Wells was a gentleman of the highest type of craftsmanship," friend. "He often made yachts and toy trains for his boys, the only son of 'H.G.' Lord Gorell, who has returned to England from a months' visit to the United States speaking at a dinner of the High-Speaking Union at Dartmouth House, said that everywhere he went, much better engineering was to be seen than in New York, as London.

EASY WIN FOR YORKSHIRE

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, June 20.
YORKSHIRE beat Gloucester in their county championship match by 101 runs.
The winners batted first and scored 227 of which Gloucester replied with 144, Barnett making 51 runs while Verity took 9 wickets for 65.
In their second innings Yorkshire made 153, Goddard getting 8 for 77 while Gloucester second innings score was 133 (Bowes 4 for 69).

FALSE PRETENCES

GETS SHOP FOKI "ONE MONTH HARD."

"Obtaining money by false pretences" was the serious charge preferred against Chau Sin Fan, a foki in the Hang Mau rice shop, before Mr. Schofield yesterday.

Acting Sub-Inspector O'Donnovan prosecuted and in outlining the case said that at about 9 a.m. on June 13, the defendant went to the Wo Shing rice shop with the tale that he had come from the Hang Mau shop to borrow $50. The defendant was apparently an old foki of the last-named shop and had been in the practice of going to the Wo Shing shop from time to time.

These people gave him the money, but later telephoned the Hang Mau shop and discovered that the defendant had not been sent from there.

On Monday afternoon, the defendant was seen on board the s.s. Charles Hardouin and was then arrested. He admitted the charge, and said he wanted the money as he had no food, and he had to go back to his native place. He had given the money to a friend on the boat.

Mr. Schofield ordered defendant to pay $50 amends to the complainants or to go to prison for one month, and in addition to serve one month's hard labour for the theft.

NORDDEUTSCHER LLOYD VESSELS

TO CALL AT DOVER

For convenience of passengers travelling from England and East, The Norddeutscher Lloyd have decided that their passenger liners, s.s. "Saarbrücken," s.s. "Friedrich," s.s. "Coblenz" and s.s. "Fulda" shall call at Dover both on their homeward and outward voyages.
These vessels maintaining a monthly service formerly did not touch at any port in England and passengers previously travelling from there to the Far East and vice versa changed ships at Rotterdam. Now passengers travelling by his line will enjoy the privilege of a direct service.

The fares by these vessels are 272 per adult in Cabin Class and in Middle Class from £48 to £64 per adult from Hong Kong to Dover or vice versa.

The first steamer touching at Dover from Hongkong will be the s.s. "Saarbrücken," sailing from here on July 8, 1933.

To Be Considered

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, June 20.
THE MONETARY SUB-COMMISSION (2) DISCUSSED THE GOLD STANDARD IN THE COURSE OF WHICH SENIOR COSIO (HUNGARY) SUGGESTED THE ADOPTION OF SILVER AS A METAL STANDARD, MADE UNDER THE ASSUMPTION OF THE SCARCITY OF GOLD, AND VOICED THE OPINION THAT A TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. GOLD COVER FOR SILVER WOULD BE PSYCHOLOGICALLY DANGEROUS.

MR. JASPAS AGREED TO THE LOWER GOLD PERCENTAGE PROPOSED BY THE AMERICAN DELEGATES BUT EXPRESSED SOME RESERVATION ON THE QUESTION OF SILVER.

THE MONETARY SUB-COMMISSION'S (2) DISCUSSION WAS ON SENATOR KEY PITTMAN'S UNITED STATES RESOLUTION MENTIONED EARLIER. THE CHAIRMAN, MR. KIENBOCK, SUGGESTED THAT UNANIMITY WAS PROBABLE ON TWO POINTS NAMELY, THAT THE ADOPTION OF THE STABILIZATION OF MONEY AND THE RE-ESTABLISHMENT OF THE GOLD STANDARD BY THE MEMBER FOR FRANCE BE APPROVED, AS WELL AS THE CHAIRMAN'S EXPOSITION.

ITALY SUPPORTED THE PART OF THE RESOLUTION CONCERNING GOLD, AND VISCOUNT HALLSHAM SAID THAT SENATOR PITTMAN'S GOLD PROPOSALS EXACTLY CORRESPONDED WITH THE UNITED KINGDOM VIEW, WHILE DR. YEN EXPRESSED THE GREATEST SYMPATHY FOR SENATOR PITTMAN'S GOLD PROPOSALS.

CHINA WAS A SILVER COUNTRY WITH IMPORTANT COMMERCIAL RELATIONS WITH NON-GOLD COUNTRIES AND HE AGREED WITH THE DESIRABILITY OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE STUDYING SILVER PROPOSALS BUT RESERVED HIS OPINION FOR THE SUB-COMMITTEE. SENATOR PITTMAN'S PROPOSAL IN REGARD TO SILVER WERE THEN REFERRED TO THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON WHICH BRITAIN, ITALY, MEXICO, CANADA, INDIA, CHINA AND JAPAN ARE REPRESENTED WITH SENATOR PITTMAN AS CHAIRMAN.

A PASSIVE ATTITUDE

LOWER GOLD COVER

WASHINGTON, June 20.
EVERYTHING points to the fact that the United States are adopting a passive attitude towards the World Conference until President Roosevelt has developed a domestic recovery programme. Meanwhile the U.S. Delegation have been instructed not to commit themselves without President Roosevelt's approval.

A statement emanating from informed quarters says that Senator Pittman's advocacy for a general twenty-five per cent. gold and silver cover mentioned yesterday may be regarded as President Roosevelt's answer to the European clamour for the stabilization of currencies and entirely consonant with the President's domestic international policy. It is hailed here as an indication that the Conference are tackling fundamentals.

When Professor Moley arrives in London next week he will not participate in the deliberations of the Conference but will be the liaison officer for President Roosevelt.

The delegation are endeavouring to clarify the confusion over President Roosevelt's economic policies.

"WEIGHTY SUGGESTIONS"

LONDON, June 20.
WEIGHTY suggestions to bring about the improvement of wholesale commodity prices are embodied in an important resolution moved by Mr. Neville Chamberlain at a meeting of the sub-Committee (1) of the Monetary Commission. The Chancellor's motion stresses that it is essential that prices be such as to restore the equilibrium between cost and production.

The fundamental Monetary conditions in this connection are, cessation and deflation of cheap and plentiful credit, and if speculation is actively encouraged by the central banks, the principal countries should undertake to co-operate and announce their intention of pursuing vigorously the policy of the cheap and plentiful money by open market operations.

NO WAY OUT

PARIS, June 20.
Official quarters see no immediate way out of the impasse at the World Conference on account of President Roosevelt's attitude regarding stabilization.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

GENEVA, June 20.
A crisis has arisen at the International Labour Conference following the German delegates' threat to resign unless they receive satisfactory excuses for the attitude of the workers' delegates towards the German delegate, Dr. Ley.

Dr. Ley's remarks to the effect that the South American States had no right to vote on a footing of equality with representatives of Germany and Italy, led workers to decide to challenge his credentials when the question came before the Conference.

The German delegates thereupon threatened to withdraw. The Bureau of the Conference have issued a statement that no effort has been offered to the German delegation at any sitting of the Conference.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

WASHINGTON, June 20.
THE United States State Department yesterday drafted a schedule of the projected talks with countries who have made token payments of the war debts.
The discussions will begin late in July, and the order in which President Roosevelt will hear the countries depends on the proportion of the debt paid on June 15.
Thus, Finland comes first, with Britain second.

FAMINE IN RUSSIA

PEASANTS ESCAPE INTO POLAND

Warsaw.—The famine in Soviet Russia has reached such a pitch that the Soviet Government is chartering vessels from England and elsewhere to transport foreign grain rapidly to Russia to relieve the distress. The peasants in many districts have been compelled to use as food the grain they had reserved for seed. The Soviet representative at the Paris trade fair now in progress has been refusing tenders for grain for some days past.

Further confirmation of the desperate internal state of affairs is provided by the crowds of Russian peasants crossing the frontier into Poland despite the sharp watch kept on the frontier by Russian guards and the severe penalty on those who fail to escape.

Dr. Baran, a member of the Polish Parliament, has taken steps to prevent these refugees being forced to return, but the local Polish authorities point out that for political, sanitary and economic reasons Poland cannot permit unchecked mass emigration from Soviet Russia. The Polish Ministry of Home Affairs must take special steps to deal with the refugees because of the scale the matter is assuming.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

SHANGHAI, June 20.
If the Yangtze rises another five feet, Hankow will be flooded as was the case in 1931, the spokesman of the Flood Relief Commission told Reuter here to-day.

Indications were that the river would continue to rise owing to the cool, wet weather, and the commission have already sent a representative to Hankow to investigate the situation and formulate relief measures.

Anxiety Increases.

NANKING, June 20.
The anxiety of the authorities has been increased over night by incoming reports from Hankow. Hangchow, Chungking and Changsha about the continued rise of the Yangtze. Chientang and Hunan rivers levels, while the situation in Nanking is also causing concern.

All water gates are closed for fear of the river water pouring into the city.

The river at Hsiakwan is now within six feet of the top of the dykes.

THE KIDNAPPING
"GAME"GANGSTERS THREATEN MR.
ROOSEVELT'S GRANDCHILD

WASHINGTON, June 14.—A threat to kidnap Sarah Delano Roosevelt, 14-month-old grandchild of the President, was reported to-day by the Boston Post but a secretary, after talking with the President to-night, declared there was "no truth" in the report.

The newspaper said the alleged threat was disclosed simultaneously with a fire of mysterious origin which swept through the summer home of James Roosevelt the President's eldest son at Little Boar's Head, New Hampshire, causing $5,000 damage.

Details of the threat, said the Boston paper, were kept secret, but said it was learned from authentic sources that the younger Roosevelt had received warnings that a plot to steal the child was under way. The Post added that a secret service man had been detailed to watch the home and escaped with the child and her mother when the fire started.

At the White House however it was said the President had talked with his son, who denied the reports.

The child is one of four grandchildren of the President and his wife. Numerous threats have been made against the President since his election last November, bombs sent through the mail and one attempt to assassinate him in February at Miami, Fla., which resulted in the death of Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago.

James is the eldest of the President's four sons, and is engaged in the insurance business and has with his father at the inauguration on March 4.

His wife is the former Betty Cushing, daughter of Dr. Harvey Cushing, Boston brain specialist. The President's other grandchildren are Anna, Dall, 5, and Curtis Dall, 2, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, and the young son of the President's second son, Elliott Roosevelt.

The latter was born last November. Elliott Roosevelt is now planning to seek a divorce from his wife, the former Betty Donner, daughter of William Donner, wealthy Philadelphia manufacturer.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken by the secret service to protect President Roosevelt especially since the Miami attempted assassination. He was heavily guarded at the inauguration.

EVIL IN RETURN FOR GOOD

HOUSE BOY ROBS MASTER.

Mr. H. E. Strange appeared as complainant in a case at Central Magistracy yesterday in which a Chinese named Tang Hok Chau was charged with the theft of a gold watch and $500 in money, the property of Mr. Strange.

Acting Sub-Inspector O'Donnovan told the Court that in July 1930, the defendant was in the employ of Mr. Strange who then lived in 197, Wong Nei Cheong Road. Between July 4 and 8, the defendant stole the money and the watch from a drawer which was unlocked and absconded. He disposed of the watch to a goldsmith in Hong Kong for $60, and then with a friend went to Shum Chun.

He remained there for a night and then went to Namtau, where two Chinese, purporting that they were from the Namtau police, searched their bags, and decamped with the money.

Continuing the officer said that the defendant remained in Namtau for some time, and came to Hong Kong six months ago, when he was arrested on information received on June 14.

Mr. Strange had treated the defendant very well. Defendant was in his employ for three years prior to the larceny. When Mr. Strange went on home leave, he paid defendant ten months' wages for the time he was away, and re-engaged him on his return.

The complainant had only been back fourteen months, when the defendant absconded.

Lawn Bowls:

The defeat of Craigenpower by the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, on the latter's green, did not cause so much surprise in lawn bowls circles as one might have expected. The winners now head the league table, with the Club de Recreio, and from a study of the league table, it might appear that they are now well on the way to Championship honours. From one who is well up in local lawn bowls matter, however, the opinion is that the Kowloon Bowling Green Club are not fancied for the championship as they have so far collected all their points on their home rinks, and moreover, on the only away match they have played, (that against the Club de Recreio), they lost. The Recreio too, have played all their matches on home rinks and followers of the league are waiting with interest to see how they will fare when they play away for a change.

The victory of the Police R.C. over Civil Service was not entirely unexpected, but no one would have predicted that the Civil Servants would go under by thirty shots. As a matter of fact Civil Service playing at home is quite a good side, but lawn bowls is a game in which predictions are difficult, and the C.S. lost on every rink. Deakin being the heaviest sufferer, conceding as much as sixteen points to Holland's. The Kowloon Dock R.C. have to thank Cullen's rink for their victory as they obtained a lead of nineteen points from Hyde-Lay's four and thus made up the deficit on the other two rinks.

In the junior games, the sensation of the week-end, though it has no bearing on the league, was the defeat of Club de Recreio by the Indians at Sookunpo. This is the Indians' first win after seven league matches and the fact they won on every rink ought to give them encouragement to carry on practising and learning. As a matter of fact, since the beginning of the season, the Indians have gained much experience and it may not be long before they figure prominently in the second division.

Coming now to the league leaders, the Civil Service did well to snatch full points from the Yacht Club and they are sure to go a long way towards contest league honours with the Craigenpower seconds, who, incidentally, inflicted a big defeat on their rivals the Kowloon Bowling Green Club. The race for leadership in this division is not so open and it looks very much as if the laurels will ultimately go either to the Civil Servants or to Craigenpower.

In the Spey Royal games, the elimination of Talkoo by the Hong Kong Electric Recreation Club was a nine days' wonder, but in spite of their victory, I do not expect to see the Electric R.C. survive the next round. The Craigenpower C.C. made short work of the Yacht Club, winning by what must be a record score. On the form they displayed in that game Craigenpower will be very difficult to beat in the Spey Royal Cup. The Kowloon Bowling Green did not have much difficulty with the Indians, although the latter put up a stubborn resistance up to the twelfth end when the score was level. Thereafter they fell off and the Bowling Green had things entirely their own way.

Gutierrez's defeat in the Open Singles was the talk of the day last week and one is again led to ask whether lawn bowls is not largely a game of luck in which skill plays a comparatively small part. Laz qualified for his second match fairly easily and as I watched him play, I got the impression that he would go far this season. Grimmer obtained an easy victory on Monday and looks like a formidable contender for honours. Omar and A. M. Hollands are others whose progress in the Singles will bear watching.

Tennis:

There were nineteen matches down for decision in the four Divisions of the Tennis League last week, but it rained practically every day and only two were completed. In the "A" and "C" Divisions not a match was played, the two matches mentioned being the contests between K.C.C. and the Graduates' Association in the "B" Division and K.C.C. and the I.R.C. in the Mixed Doubles. If it rains any more, the programme will be very much in arrears.

In the Kowloon-Graduates encounter on Tuesday at King's Park, the home team had no difficulty in gaining a handsome victory. For the winners, R. B. Humbly and A. E. Collins were in their best form. Combining well and playing steady tennis they took all three sets. The other two Kowloon pairs were also playing well and each conceded only one set, with the result that Kowloon won 7-2.

The mixed doubles match on Friday was to have been played on the L.R.C. ground, but it was drier in Kowloon and by mutual consent the venue was shifted there. Even then the players had some difficulty in keeping their feet. Teddy Fincher and Miss Olive Daisiel were in fine form and won all their three sets, but their companions were not able to get the two more necessary to give their side the match, which, after a lot of uncertainty, was drawn when E. F. Fincher and Mrs. Hambly, despite determined play, lost to R. H. Wild and Mrs. Vaddall in the last set. For the L.R.C. Wild and Mrs. Vaddall were most successful. The K.C.C. first pair was too good for them, but they managed to beat the other two pairs easily, conceding only six games. I think the Peninsula side were surprised by their inability to score a win, but they were handicapped by the absence of Miss Griffith and Miss S. Daisiel, who took her place, did not play well enough to fill Miss Griffith's place.

Some interesting tennis was seen in the "A" Division matches played on Monday. All the results were as expected, though it was thought that South China would be able to give the C.R.C. a much better game than they did. The Causeway Bay team, however, were on the top of their form, M. K. Lo and Yew Man Kit conceding the only set in the match Tsui Wai Pui and Ho Ka Lau played extremely well, the former especially being brilliant. His overhead work was better than usual and he was driving very convincingly, while Yew supplied the steady influence.

"Sirdar" and H. D. Rumjahn signalled the fact that they were once again in partnership by taking all their three sets against Craigenpower. In their set against Tam and Tsui they played especially well. The two young Chinese are had hitters but the Indians played them at their own game, and beat them love set. Pereira and Minu, the Indians' No. 3 pair, put up a fine game, the latter playing extremely well in the last set, but Casumbhoy and Razack were disappointing. The latter had been indisposed and has perhaps not yet run into form. For the losers Hachuma and Leonard, though the most successful pair did not seem to partner very well, their sets being gained more through individual work and the mistakes of their opponents than through team work.

The "A" Division League is now in a rather interesting position. The Chinese R.C. are most favourably placed. If, when they meet the Indians they can force a draw they will almost certainly win the Shield. On present form and taking into consideration the results of games played up to date the odds are very much on a win for the Chinese. In all their games they have displayed a confidence against which their opponents could do nothing and they are, furthermore, heartened by the fact that the Indians appear to be out of the race, but the I.R.C. will be on their mettle and a very keen struggle is bound to take place. Much will depend on the efforts of Tsui Wai Pui and Ho Ka Lau for the C.R.C. and Casumbhoy and Razack for the Indians. The Rumjahns will most probably be able to take at least two sets, if not all three, and the form of the Indian No. 2 pair will have a lot to do with the result of the match, and probably the destination of the Shield.

Aquatics:

There was very real regret in local aquatic circles when it was announced that Shanghai is not to send a team to Hong Kong in the autumn for an interport contest. This is a big disappointment and the V.R.C. sent the Northern port an invitation early in the year. The Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association did the same as soon as they possibly could. With no interport now in view, and with the V.R.C. and the Army still abstaining from joining the H.K.A.S.A., one wonders what is to become of the various championships of the Colony that have to be decided this year? The position seems somewhat complicated, but those who are eager to promote aquatic sport should set about, at this early stage, to find a solution.

The V.R.C. have been going great guns with their water polo this season and so far they have played

DAVIS CUP TENNIS

FINE RECOVERY BY JAPAN

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

PARIS, June 19.

JIRO SATOH, the Japanese tennis ace, avenged his defeat at the hands of Jack Crawford in the French Championships, when he won a fluctuating five-set match against the Australian No. 1 ranking player in the Davis Cup encounter yesterday.

R. Nunoi also won his game to complete the fine Japanese recovery. He beat Vivian McGrath, the 17-year-old two-handed player in four sets to reduce the score to 3-2 in favour of Australia.

Australia will meet Great Britain in the Zone Final for right to play America. The winners of the Inter Zone Final will meet France in Paris in the Challenge Round.

R. Nunoi (Japan) beat V. McGrath 6-4, 6-4, 6-8, 7-5.

J. Satoh (Japan) beat J. Crawford 3-6, 6-3, 6-1, 1-6, 6-2.

J. Crawford and A. Quist (Australia) beat R. Nunoi and J. Satoh (Japan) 7-5, 7-9, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

J. Crawford (Australia) beat R. Nunoi 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

V. McGrath (Australia) beat J. Satoh 9-7, 1-6, 4-6, 8-4, 7-5.

U.S. BASEBALL

MONDAY'S RESULTS

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

NEW YORK, June 20.

LOU Gehrig has taken the lead in the home run parade and Babe Ruth, the 1931 tied home run king with Gehrig, is in bed ill. Jimmy Foxx is only one behind the Yankees' star.

Results as cabled by Reuter were as follows:—

National League.

Chicago	0	3	0
Schumacher pitched
New York	3	7	4
Cincinnati	7	14	2
Bottomley hit a homer.
Philadelphia	8	12	2
Chuck Klein hit a homer.
St. Louis	5	15	0
Brooklyn	6	10	1
Taylor hit a homer.

American League.

Boston	5	10	3
Warstler hit a homer.
Cleveland	2	5	2
New York	3	7	0
Lou Gehrig hit a homer.
Chicago	4	10	1
Philadelphia	4	6	2
Higgins hit a homer.
Detroit	9	13	1
Gehring hit a homer.
Washington	10	22	1
Schute, Kuhl, Harris and Cronin hit a homers.
St. Louis	4	10	3

seven matches, all of which they won easily. On May 20 their first eleven played the first team of the Chinese Athletic Association and won by 7-1 while the second strings of these two clubs met, the V.R.C. winning by 4-2. On June 7 the first and second team met the H.M.S. Cornwall's first and second strings and won respectively by 8-1 and 7-1. On June 15 the senior team met the South Wales Borderers and won by 8 goals to 1 and the juniors beat the R.A.F. by 7-0. On June 19 the Club played the 20th Battery R.A. and won by seven clear goals. Altogether there are indications that the V.R.C. are still as formidable as ever in water polo circles and still appear to be the best side in the Colony.

Baseball:

What a pity it is that baseball has such a poor following in Hong Kong. Some very good games are played on the Caroline Hill diamond from time to time, but it seems that only people present to watch the games are the players and a handful of their supporters. A few years back, baseball in Hong Kong had many supporters and the problem then was how to keep the crowds back, but now there is no crowd and but for the reports in the papers, very little would be known of the game. The President Collidge put up a good show against South China on Monday, but there were less than a hundred people present to watch the match. What's wrong with baseball in Hong Kong?

H.K. FOOTBALL COUNCIL

ST. JOSEPH'S "INADEQUATE" TEAM DISMISSED

The monthly meeting of the Hong Kong Football Association was held yesterday evening. The Chairman read a letter from Mr. Elliot-Haywood drawing attention to irregularity in the match between South China and St. Joseph's. It will be recalled that in that match the Saints turned out only seven men, one of whom, it was stated, belonged to the Radio Sports Club. The writer made objection to this, saying it was not fair to other teams that South China should have such an easy opposition.

Major C. M. Manners the Chairman agreed that other clubs, as well as the Football Council itself, had a "grouse."

Mr. Mitchell remarked that practically all of the St. Joseph's team had to be at work and it was impossible for them to be at the ground by 5 p.m. or in some cases even 6 p.m. He suggested that as nothing was done about the matter at the time, it should not be raised now.

The Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, however, pointed out that the Saints made their own fixture, and proposed that they be written to for an explanation. He made it clear that he did not mean that they were to be censured. That matter was put to the vote and Dr. Kotewall's suggestion was adopted.

Mr. J. K. Mok should represent the Council on the Executive Committee of the Children's Playground Association. This was passed unanimously.

The Annual Meeting was fixed for Friday, July 14 at the Sports Club when alterations in the Rules would be discussed, and the usual business conducted.

RECEPTION AT LLOYD'S

One of the many official receptions in connection with the World Economic and Monetary Conference to give it its full title—will take place on the 22nd.

It is being given by the Chairman and Committee of Lloyd's, and will be held in the headquarters of the famous underwriters.

A more admirable setting for such an entertainment could scarcely be found, for Sir Edwin Cooper's fine building, which was opened by the King in 1928, lacks nothing in dignity and spaciousness.

AN ENGAGEMENT

The engagement of Capt. E. W. Brook, the Duke of Gloucester's Equerry, to Miss Mary Gretton, daughter of Colonel John Gretton, M.P., links two important industrial towns.

Colonel Gretton is the chairman of the great Bass's brewery at Burton-on-Trent, and Capt. Brook's family have long been associated with the big cotton-spinning mills at Meltham, Huddersfield.

Capt. Brook, by the way, organised the Duke of Gloucester's recent big game expedition in East Africa. He has a considerable acquaintance with big game-hunting, and can tell some exciting stories of his experiences in the jungle.

AWAJI EXCURSION SERIOUS RIVAL TO CRATER CRAZE

The volcano leap has a serious rival for the affection of death seekers. It is now revealed that within the past two months, 55 people have jumped overboard from steamers plying between Kobe and Awaji, according to reports tabulated by the Awaji police.

The police are considering some method of stopping the craze, and are to solicit the assistance of the steamship companies concerned.

HONG KONG, JUNE 21, 1933.

BOARDING HOUSES

The boarding house in England is often the hallmark of extinction. Retired civil servants, merchants and officers from the Far East, the Near East and just the East, sink their personalities in the sympathetic folds of the anti-macassar and coc to hearty commercials of tropical days that are no more. London boarding-houses are so often the last refuge of men who "counted for something" in the hard, hot countries, but who in England are soon lost in the unknown crowd of pensioners. Thus there is generally an air of pathos about a private hotel at Home, with its dingy tablecloths, its grimy horns in the hall, and the aroma of stale food which seems to exude from the faded wallpaper. East of Suez boarding-houses of the better type have little of that decrepit air. Boarding-houses out East, in fact, fall into two types. The first is comfortable and well equipped, keeping a good table, and, supplying a degree of comfort for which one would pay heavily at Home. Many people settle in these places, grumble at them, but stay, giving as their reason that it is less trouble than running a flat.

On the other hand, there is also the type described in hundreds of "realistic" novels. They are not far to seek, and out East the deficiencies are multiplied. Whether in Bombay, in Singapore or Kowloon, the same insipid oleograph leans down at you from behind the mosquito net. The mattress is hard, the drawers of the wardrobe are warped, the chairs and the carpets clash as they did in the second-hand shop where they reclined for years; the curtains are faded with overmuch washing and the servants' white coats badly need laundering. Yet in this atmosphere men and women who have known the meaning of luxury and refinement in English homes, bravely smile as they crumble their stale bread and drink the watery soup, realising that a smile goes far to eke out uncertain prospects during the slump. Scores of Europeans who come East are never able to afford their own bungalows, flats or homes and must remain in pension until such time as they can go Home on leave or retire.

It is still believed in England that Europeans in the East live in conditions of princely luxury, surrounded by armies of liveried servants who kow-tow every time they approach the august presence; that no one does much work, but lolls all day in a long chair, sipping whisky sodas under a fan. What a delusion is this! Could some of the young adventurous innocents at Home see life in the East as it really is, then they might be less eager to answer that inviting advertisement, or plead with Uncle Jack to use his influence with some benighted firm. The fascination which the East and the tropics in general have always held for the white man is largely due to the romantic mirage created by writers like Conrad or Kipling and by artists who paint palm trees as though they were fringes of angels' hair. The sun himself, however, is just as much to blame. He gilds the green coth of an English lawn with a mellow haze that sends the mind a-dreaming of lands that are still steeped in magic and mystery to the majority, or slyly veneers the sea with a false lustre so that our longing eyes, tired of wet pavements and dreary streets, follow its path until we see on the horizon the sort of picture that Conrad's books have drawn in the imagination. Yet after the excitement of that first voyage out, when ledgers instead of the phosphorescent wake (Continued at foot of next column)

PLAYGROUND FOR POOR CHILDREN

WHAT IS BADLY WANTED IN THE "SLUM AREAS"

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

There is no gainsaying the fact that of recent years Kowloon generally has grown enormously and most notable is perhaps the development of Kowloon City, Yau-mati and the Kai Tack district. In this matter the Government has shown much foresight and enterprise, but as they cannot be expected to do everything at one time, it is to be hoped that the oversight which I am about to mention will receive their early attention. I refer to the sad lack of play-grounds for Chinese children of the poorer classes, and as there are apparently many lots on the mainland that could be fenced in and converted into suitable play-grounds, it would indeed be a good stroke of work if something on these lines were done.

Although this article is meant to be essentially about Kowloon, I feel that I must drift a little in order to show how useful such play-grounds would be. One need only take a tram-car through Wanchai any fine evening to see what good use is being made of the play-ground commonly known as the "Rotary-Club Play-ground." This is on the Praya East Reclamation directly opposite the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home and although the area is very limited, a miniature football ground, complete with goal-posts etc., is marked out, and this is where teams like the "Wanchai Wanderers," "Gloucester Gladiators," "Hennessy Hotspurs" and "Lockhart Lancers" play off their matches. A crowd of at least fifty grown-up people watch these matches and such occasions are made all the more important by reason of the fact that a referee, complete with whistle, is provided for each game!

Kowloon's Need.

In Kowloon, we find perhaps some of the best recreation grounds that exist here. The K.C.C. with its imposing pavilion is indeed a ground fit for the Kowloon, lai-paas while those in King's Park are in no way inferior. These, of course, are for the grown-ups, but the children too have their own play-grounds. A stroll along Chatham Road in the cool of the evenings is all that is needed to prove how the little ones make use of the swings, see-saws, maypoles, etc. that are provided for them while the adults too, make real good use of the seats. But all of this is only for the children of the better off classes.

Although I have not seen any street-football along either Nathan Road or any of the other larger motor-roads, I feel sure that there must be a good deal played in the more remote quarters. The boys must have their games and if suitable grounds are not provided for them, they will soon play on the roadway, regardless of whether they are going to be a nuisance to traffic or not. As far as I remember, a few boys who were caught playing football in a public thoroughfare were promptly arrested and brought before the Court, and I think they all knew what the rat-tan was like, as a result.

Boys Will Be Boys.

It does seem pretty hard for boys to get a whipping just because they were caught playing football in the roadway. Boys will be boys, and they must have their games. Because they are not as fortunate as the more well-to-do lads who can get a game on some ground or other, does it mean that they will have to give up all forms of sport?

Some of the districts in Yau-mati, Mongkok and Shamshuipo are disgracefully overcrowded and it is a wonder we do not have more outbreaks of small-pox, diphtheria and plague. Yet "lungs" are not provided for these areas, although I feel sure it most realised how sorely these "lungs" are wanted. Land is hard to get and valuable, but it is a short sighted and greedy policy of the Government to sell every square foot for building, and never an open space. It is true that Kowloon, as a Peninsula, gets plenty of cooling breeze from Lymoon, but this does not do away with the need for open spaces in the congested areas.

The Sick Also Served.

There is quite a lot to be said in favour of these play-grounds and so far as I can see, there can be nothing against it. The Kowloon Residents Association have done a lot for the children in the Peninsula. Let us hope that some of the leading Chinese residents will take up this cause in favour of Chinese boys who are so much in need of a suitable place to take their daily exercise. It will be well to bear in mind that the play-grounds, if forthcoming, will also be able to serve a very useful purpose.

A poor Chinese coolie who may be unwell now cannot find any quiet spot in the open in which to rest and get the benefit of the sun and fresh air, but if seats are provided in a play-ground as suggested this long-felt want would be remedied. It does nobody any good to have to take the air in a motor-road, all the time expecting to be run down by one of the many vehicles which use the road.

Traffic-Sergeant Brittain summoned Leung Kwok Chuen, the driver of a taxicab with driving his cab in a dangerous manner in Garden Road. A fine of $25 was imposed.

Li Lam Muk, the driver of a public car was fined $30 for driving at a dangerous speed at Whitfield.

Sergeant Clarke said defendant was doing 22 miles per hour.

Doctor Fined.

Dr. A. N. Jones, of the War Memorial Hospital was fined $5 for causing an obstruction with his car outside the Peak Hotel Annex. Defendant who was absent last week, explained he had been away on holiday and received the summons on Monday.

TRAFFIC TIME AT CENTRAL

BATCH OF MOTOR SUMMONS.

A lorry driver was fined $5 yesterday by Mr. Schofield for failing to keep to the left side of the road when taking a bend. It was stated that a military motor lorry narrowly missed being run into, and escaped thanks to the resourcefulness of the driver.

Defendant told the Court that he had to get to the centre of the

THE NEXT FRENCH LINER

SPEED'S THE THING

Paris-Speed is a major object in plans for a successor to the French liner Atlantique on the ship-lane to South America.

Eugene Fort, French minister of merchant marine, has announced that internal combustion motors and new designs for the hull are being studied in an effort to build a vessel swift enough to compete against the growing competition of the airplane.

"Before ten years," he predicted, "trans-oceanic postal service will be made regularly by airplanes."

His study of the question, M. Fort said, shows that a liner of 28,000 to 30,000 tons would be sufficiently large for the service between France and South America, providing it is fast enough, safe and steady. The Atlantique was a 40,000-ton ship.

"Speed is the essential quality to-day on land, on water and in the air," M. Fort said. "Soon liners will have to combat the competition of airplanes. If ships wish to keep their place in the world's passenger traffic they must achieve increasingly greater speed."

As for the hull of the burned Atlantique, now a subject of dispute between the owners and the insurers, P. Gayral, a French engineer, suggests that it be anchored in the North Atlantic halfway between Cherbourg and New York as a mid-ocean air-drome for trans-Atlantic flights.

COLONY'S TRADE DURING MAY

EXPORTS STEADY: DECREASE OF IMPORTS

TOTALS FOR FIRST FIVE MONTHS OF 1933

An official report issued by the Statistical Office of the Imports and Exports Department states that total imports of merchandise into the Colony during the month of May, 1933, amounted to a declared value of $46.9 millions (£3.2 millions), as compared with $53.4 millions (£3.3 millions) in May 1932, while exports totalled $37.5 millions (£2.5 millions), as against $37.6 millions (£2.3 millions).

For the first five months of 1933, Imports totalled $219.6 millions (£14.3 millions), as compared with $235.3 millions (£18.9 millions) in the corresponding period of 1932, while Exports were valued at $177.9 millions (£11.6 millions), as compared with $208.6 millions (£13.8 millions) in the same period.

The following table shows comparative figures of Imports and Exports of merchandise and treasure in the months of May, 1933, and 1932:-

	Imports.		Exports.
	(000 omitted).	May, 1933.	(000 omitted).	May, 1932.
Merchandise	$46,949	$53,400	$37,486	$37,594
Treasure	6,353	10,688	12,790	11,973
Total	$53,332	$64,138	$50,276	$49,567

Monthly Fluctuations.

Since May of 1932 total imports of merchandise into Hong Kong fluctuated from the lowest dollar value ($8.0 millions) in January, 1933, to the highest ($3.4 millions) in May, 1933; while exports fluctuated from $31.3 millions in January, 1933, to $41.7 millions in November, 1932.

The figures are given below with the sterling equivalents, at average rates of exchange, in brackets:-

	Imports.	Exports.
May	$53,440 ($3,312)	$37,594 ($2,330)
June	$50,096 ($3,144)	$33,946 ($2,111)
July	$44,677 ($2,827)	$33,472 ($2,118)

HUMAN CAPACITY

DOUBLED BY NEW INJECTIONS

LONDON, June 11.
The British Medical Journal publishes the discovery of injections made from the extract of the adrenal gland of animals, whereby the human capacity for work is doubled.

Injection of the extract into a dog resulted in doubling its running capacity. The effects lasted a fortnight.

The adrenal, or suprarenal gland, is situated above the kidneys.

JILTED KOREAN'S MADNESS

KILLS THREE, WOUNDS TWO, IN ATTACK ON SWEETHEART

Tokyo.—Jilted by his sweetheart, a café waitress, a Korean labourer broke into the Cafe Speed, at Kasehara, Gifu prefecture, on Sunday, with the intention of murdering her.

He was armed with a long knife, and when several other Koreans in the café tried to disarm him, he ran amok.

There was a desperate fight, five men fighting him with their bare hands, and chairs which they hurriedly snatched up. The madman killed three, and seriously wounded the other two, before help arrived, and he was overpowered.

The girl, who fled when the fight started, was unhurt.

A GOLD DIVINER

YEovil ENGINEER AND COCOS TREASURE.

A Yeovil engineer who claims to be able to "divine" gold, using a steel spring instead of the water diviner's hazel twig, is to lead an expedition to find a new goldfield in South America.

He is Mr. Frank Cooper, and he has just returned from an expedition in search of a treasure hoard said to have been buried by pirates on Cocos Island, the "Treasure Island" of the Pacific.

No treasure was actually brought to the surface, Mr. Cooper and his friends are convinced it is there, and could probably be recovered if sufficient machinery were used.

"My new expedition will be to search for a new South American goldfield," said Mr. Cooper. "Our actual destination must be kept secret. We shall sail in about six weeks' time."

"I suffered unnecessary pains since I was 15"

How KALZANA acts—

Your body is built up of millions of living cells, the vital part of which is dependent upon Calcium for its health. Any shortage of Calcium weakens the whole constitution and causes disturbances in the functions of the internal organs, resulting in undue pains and excessive loss. Kalzana contains the extra calcium needed to overcome Calcium deficiency—the root of your trouble—and so, in a natural way, will quickly bring you back to real, carefree health again.

"Kalzana is of great value in the treatment of menorrhagia and dysmenorrhoea (and loss and pains)."

KALZANA soothes Irritable Nerves

"Nerve-cells in order to function properly, must have their calcium," writes a well-known physician. "Many cases of obstinate nervous trouble can be traced to a lack of this all-important mineral. It may be 'moodiness' in children, irritability in women, fatigue in men; it may show itself in any number of ways, such as lack of appetite, sleeplessness or headaches—nerves are at the bottom of it. By taking Kalzana you will correct any calcium shortage in the nerve cells. Your nerves will become healthy again and all symptoms of weakness will be rooted out."

Made by the Manufacturers of SANATOGEN and FORMAMINT.

Weakness due to Lack of Calcium

Kalzana will quickly overcome all kinds of weakness due to lack of calcium such as:-

General Debility

Kalzana strengthens the cells of nerves, bones and blood and has a remarkable tonic effect on your health.

Weak Teeth

Weak, decaying teeth are simply under-nourished teeth. They lack calcium, the food that makes the teeth strong and healthy. Weak teeth are a constant cause of pain and trouble. Moreover, they mar the beauty of your face. Start taking Kalzana, the Calcium food, and make your teeth strong and white again.

Signs of Old Age

Kalzana lowers high blood pressure, strengthens the heart-muscle and stimulates the action of the internal organs.

"Kalzana tablets are a boon to such girls as myself who suffer a great deal of pain at certain periods. I have suffered these unnecessary pains since I was fifteen years of age, as a matter of course. Kalzana has done for me all it claims to do and I only wish I had heard of the preparation before."

Miss M.A.—L.

Why suffer these periodic complaints and irregularities? They can so easily be overcome. For they mean that your body lacks sufficient calcium and simply by taking "Kalzana," the Calcium food, this necessary element will be brought into your system and you will very soon enjoy undisturbed health. Being a food, "Kalzana" is absolutely harmless and is frequently prescribed by leading physicians.

Of all Chemists

Kalzana

THE CALCIUM FOOD

The opinion of well-known medical papers about KALZANA:

"The Pharmaceutical Journal of New Zealand," Jan. 1930.

"We have employed Kalzana with much advantage in the management of delicate children. It seems to be of considerable service in cases of rickets and other morbid conditions of bone and also as a preventive of dental caries. For pregnant women Kalzana is often beneficial."

"The British Journal of Tuberculosis," April 1929:

"Kalzana has been used with very good results in cases of calcium deficiency, such as bone diseases, dental caries, rickets, weakness in growing children, during pregnancy and lactation—in fact, in all cases where a diet with an excessive calcium content is necessary."

Rickets too are a typical sign of a lack of calcium. Kalzana will set all that right, and very soon your child will be happy and healthy again."

FINANCIAL NOTES FROM LONDON

PLAN FOR CUT IN GOLD COVER EFFECT ON U.S. NOTE ISSUE

(Special Air-Mail Service)

LONDON, June 6. Washington.—Holding the concentration of 30 per cent. of the world's gold in five countries to be the main obstacle to a universal return to the Gold Standard, the United States delegation is expected here to suggest a new means for a gradual redistribution of gold.

The probable method to be adopted was revealed by Señor Pedro Torres, the Chilean delegate to the World Conference, who is now here as the last of President Roosevelt's visitors for a preliminary discussion.

According to New York Times, Señor Torres has been discussing with the President and the State Department a detailed proposal to enlist the aid of the Central Banks and adopt a world-wide 25 per cent. cover for the currency in circulation—20 per cent. in gold and 5 per cent. in silver.

Big Gold Stocks Freed.

The proposal, if adopted, would have an immediate and far-reaching effect in the United States, which still maintains the legal 40 per cent. cover. At present the Federal Reserve system has in circulation notes of a value of about $260,000,000, and the gold reserve amounts to $76,000,000.

Under the suggested scheme the gold stock could be reduced to about $165,000,000, and gold worth about $400,000,000 would thus be released for other purposes. The silver project would allow for the dispersal of a further $35,000,000 worth of gold.

This is the first indication that has been disclosed of any plan which the delegation may be considering. Although further details are necessarily still lacking, it is evident that the figures quoted above are dependent on there being no further increase in the authorised note circulation.

With the present 40 per cent. cover, the U.S. gold stocks would permit the issue of notes of a total value of $1,400,000,000. If the cover were reduced to 25 per cent., it would protect notes up to $2,300,000,000.

It has now been decided at the last moment that Dr. O. M. W. Sprague shall, after all, go to London as financial adviser to the delegation, and not stay at Washington, as had been expected.

Attack on Mr. Bingham.

Some light is thrown on the difficulties in dealing with the opposition which the Administration will have to face by the demand of Senator Robinson (Republican) for the recall of Mr. Bingham, the Ambassador in London, following the report of his recent speech there.

Mr. Robinson is already seeking the resignations of Mr. Norman Davis and Mr. Woodin, as "Morgan pets." He now adds Mr. Bingham to the list, because he has "made a speech undertaking to overturn the traditional policy of this country prevailing since Washington's days."

SILK AND THE BOOM

JAPANESE COCOON RAISERS WARNED

Tokyo, June 7.

There is an increased demand for working funds by cocoon raisers, who, encouraged by the recent improvement of the market, want to increase their production to the maximum. The Central Depository of Industrial Associations, however, will not readily meet the demand. The management is keenly alive to the need of caution against the present trade boom.

The Central Depository does not entertain the optimistic view as is held elsewhere on future trade. In its opinion, the market quotation was boosted up by the hasty buying of small reeler, who are short of raw material. The cover by large operators is still insignificant. It is premature to anticipate a marked increase in the consumption of raw silk in the United States through the inflationary measures there. Nor can silk traders foretell the success of the World Economic Conference and the consequent of prosperity. It is dangerous to increase the production of cocoons at this moment.

The management is reluctant to give liberal facilities to cocoon raisers in this situation, particularly in view of the disastrous experience of 1916 when owing to a slump in cocoon prices, the Depository could not recover a large part of the money accommodated to cocoon raisers. Last year the Depository lent 80 per cent. of the value of cocoons, but for the above mentioned reason, the management has now decided to reduce this limit to 60 per cent. The management will also advise cocoon raisers to obtain payment of at least 40 per cent. in cash from reeler.

Most reeler are of the opinion that the present market quotation for cocoons is too high. Assuming the raw silk quotation for White 13-15 denier D grade at ¥850, their cost of production is ¥1200, they can pay only ¥780 or a price factor of 45 kake per kwai of cocoons. The present market indication, however, is 48 or 47 kake. If the market continues its upswing, therefore, reeler will be unable to carry on business on a profitable basis. Many reeler are now exercising every caution in making covers.—Japan Chronicle.

SIAM GOVERNMENT LOAN

INVESTOR'S EAGERNESS.

Bangkok, June 7.

The Government considers its internal loan to have been a great success. Private subscriptions led at Tcs. 1,600,000. In Siam investors expect a high return for their money, and in the loan just floated the Government relied upon, and, as the result shows, were justified in doing so, on a small number of big investors with surplus funds, who from patriotic motives, no doubt partly because, in these days a safe 4 1/2 per cent. is not too easily obtained, came forward as heavy subscribers. The amount offered would have enabled Government to cover an issue of 11,500,000 ticals. No underwriting of the loan was made, but Government more or less had arranged for the loan to be completely covered, and this was evident when the subscription from the Privy Purse, foundations and certain banks and companies came in. Despite this success, as in the past, it is felt that also in the future, Siam must continue to count on foreign markets for her further capital requirements.

URAL DISCOVERY

MINERAL THAT MAY HELP TO MAKE ARTIFICIAL RUBBER

Sverdlovsk, U.S.S.R.—Last summer, after a forest fire near Lake Buldun in the Urals, there was discovered in the burnt-out woods a stratum of multicoloured mineral, undamaged by the fire. It proved to be a rare species of mica-vermiculite. A subsequent survey of the area brought to light rich deposits of the mineral.

Altogether five strata were found, each 15 metres in depth. The deposits have already been estimated at 40,000 tons. Until now, vermiculite has been bought by the Soviet Union abroad.

At a temperature of from 250 to 300 degrees vermiculite expands its dimensions 15 to 20 times and also changes in colour. It is an excellent material for house decoration, can be substituted for several kinds of paints, and is a perfect insulating material. The possibility of its use in the production of artificial rubber is now being studied.

TANAHIION IN JAPAN

BIG INCREASES COMING

Tokyo.—As already reported the opposition hitherto maintained by Mr. Takahashi, the Finance Minister, to the increase of taxes from the next fiscal year has been appreciably relaxed.

The Finance Minister has often declared in the past that it will be premature to increase taxes in the fiscal year 1934-1935, but the view has in the meantime been growing among the permanent officials of his Department that he basic budgetary policy for the next year should be to defray ordinary expenditure by ordinary revenue, and that where a revenue deficit occurs, taxes and income from Government enterprise should be increased to make it up.

This view has had its effects on the Finance Minister, who has now so far relaxed as to express himself in favour of increase of taxes within limits in the new fiscal year.

Admiral Saito, the Premier, favours the idea, nor are Baron Yamamoto, the Home Minister, General Araki, Minister for War, and Mr. Minami, Minister of Communications, against it. Mr. Mitsuchi, Minister of Railways, is also said not to be hostile, provided the time and methods are wisely chosen.

Although the view in favour of higher taxes is thus predominant in Government circles and the Finance Department authorities are making the necessary investigations for the purpose, the Government is chary of committing itself. This hesitant attitude is ascribed to the Government's uncertainty about the Seiyukai's future course of action.

If the Seiyukai definitely decides to sever connection with the Government, it is feared the increase of taxes may put in the party's hands a good weapon with which to attack the Government. In all probability, the Government will refrain from any definite statement of policy in this regard, until it is assured of the Seiyukai's attitude towards the Government, it is said.

Asia Lands, Limited, has received the following report from their New York correspondents, E. A. Pierce & Co. Inflation was the whole talk today. The reported refusal of the Administration to enter into an agreement at this time to stabilize the Dollar touched off the market and overcame virtually all the effects of last week's reaction. It now looks like new high ground for the market. Wheat. The most influential factor has been the feeling that the Administration will adhere to the programme calling for higher commodity prices. This, coupled with firm cables and the strength of Foreign exchange, was responsible for the advance. Cotton: As an outcome of the plan for an acreage cut by the process tax conditional support was received from producers. There were bullish textile advices and the weather is favourable. Silver: The advance was due to short covering and Commission house buying. The bulk of offerings was by Trade profit-takers but there was some foreign selling. At the close the market ruled steady.

Business Done: 5,480,000 shares.

A high-contrast, black and white graphic illustration of a woman's face, possibly a prostitute, with the text "BIG WHITE EMPRESSES" above it. The image is grainy and has a posterized appearance, with the woman's features rendered in stark black and white. The text is in a bold, sans-serif font, with the words "BIG WHITE" on the top line and "EMPRESSES" on the bottom line. The entire graphic is enclosed in a thin black border.
